PRESIDENT COOLIDGE'S message to Congress asks for fifteen cruisers, explaining that a big navy is no bar to the Kellogg peace pact. That's true, and it wouldn't make much difference if it were a bar. A navy is a reality. A peace pact is a piece of paper.

Those that prattle about peace, when there is no safe peace except in protection, should consider the 60,000,000 Japanese, living beside more than 500,000,000 Chinese.

Chinese as a race are probably abler than the Japanese.

But Japan dominates China and stands an equal among the nations. China stands nowhere. The Japanese know how to protect themselves. Desiring peace, they are ready to fight, if necessary.

PRESIDENT COOLIDGE says this country is not "militaristic or imperialistic."

Certainly not, but it is an empire, a good solid one, all tied together, from the northwestern tip of Alaska to the southeastern tip of Florida.

And it means to be ready for unpleasant approaches by anybody that is militaristic.

THE President puts it mildly when he tells Congress "the country can regard the present with satisfaction and anticipate the future with optimism."

The Gauls told Alexander that the only thing they feared was that the sky might fall on them.

The only thing Americans have to fear is their own foolishness.

ANOTHER gentleman, with no official title, has a message for Congress. His name is old Mr. Power Lobby, and his boss is that important person, the power trust.

His message to Congress is not printed, no advance copy sent to editors. But the public will know, by watching Congress, how effective and how "convincing" the message is.

WATCH your heart, especially if you have responsibilities and worries, before it is too late.

Five doctors are watching King George's heart now, too late perhaps. His temperature is lower, congestion in the lungs has subsided. But doctors warn against optimism, because of that weak heart.

Mentally, as Goethe said, it is "courage gone, everything gone." Physically, it is "heart gone, everything gone."

FIGURES, unfortunately, reveal the gravity of King George's illness. Yesterday it cost 90 per cent to insure the King's life over Christmas.

The King's doctors, first two, then three, then four, now number five in attendance. Three have titles of nobility which enable them to leave off the letters M. D. In Britain, to this day, doctors have little social standing. As for the dentist, he has less than none.

THE "royal sign manual" means the King's signature is necessary on many documents, and the king is too ill to sign papers.

A royal commission exercising certain of his powers includes the Queen, the Duke of York, Premier Baldwin, the Archbishop of Canterbury and the Lord Chancellor.

These dignitaries make up the functioning machinery of the empire. Its backbone is the House of Commons; its ornamental ruffle the House of Lords.

THE new "Perry cut off" reduces traveling time between Chicago and Tampa, Fla., by eight hours. The first train went over the cut off yesterday.

Good news for Florida, better news for Chicago.

The real cut off will be by the airplane, enabling Chicago to spend one week end in Florida, the next in California, with plenty of time for business in Chicago between.

VICE PRESIDENT BYLES, of the American Petroleum Institute, urges a national program "for rationalization of the oil industry."

The general public that owns 24,000,000 automobiles is more interested than oil producers in conservation of the oil supply.

The oil industry, once called "a monopoly," is now intensely and destructively competitive. The government should control that.

GOLDMAN SACHS starts a $100,000,000 trading corporation, inviting the public to buy 900,000 shares. Once you would have said, "What a gigantic company." Now you say, "Nice little company, perhaps it will grow." We get used to big things.

DR. KONG, minister of industry, commerce and labor in the new Chinese government, suggests an end of child labor, an eight-hour day for workers and profit-sharing in factories.

Will "the heathen in his blindness" end child labor ahead of this nation, which sends missionaries to convert the Chinese? The founder of Christianity probably would prefer absence of child labor under Confucianism to the present child labor under a pretended Christianity.

Duke's Daughter Works as Shop Girl

NEAR-ZERO WAVE DUE

FIND DUKE'S DAUGHTER AS CLERK

NEW YORK, Dec. 5.—(INS.) — Society still was gasping today over the revelation that until yesterday the daughter of one of England's richest and best-known peers had been working as a shop girl in a local department store for only $25 a week.

OWNED "UNLUCKY" GEM

The duke formerly owned the famous and ill-starred Hope diamond, which legend says has brought nothing but woe to its possessors since Marie Antoinette gave it to one of her friends a short time before she was led to the guillotine.

Lady Doria was discovered behind the counter of a Fifth avenue store yesterday, and today finds her in hiding at the home of Mrs. Frederick Brooke, wealthy society woman of Washington, her adventure over.

Two months ago she arrived from England accompanied by Miss Leonora Highet, her chum, and went to the Frederick Brooke's summer home at Buzzard Bay. She tired of the endless round of social affairs after a few weeks and together with Miss Highet determined to see New York from the "inside," she said.

ADVENTURE STARTS

The two girls rented a $55-a-month apartment in Greenwich Village, and then started a search for jobs just like countless less-favored girls do alone in New York. Lady Doria, of a radiant personality, had little trouble getting a $25 a week salesgirl position, while Miss Highet was given a position as interior decorator at $30 a week.

But it all came to an end yesterday. Some person, whose identity is concealed, tripped up to the counter of the store behind which

MELLON DAUGHTER TO WED POLOIST

MRS. ALEXANDER LAUGHLIN, JR.

THOMAS HITCHCOCK, JR.

MRS. LAUGHLIN TO WED POLO CELEBRITY

Mrs. Alexander Laughlin, Jr., the former Margaret Mellon, and Thomas Hitchcock, Jr., prominent in New York society and one of the country's best known polo players, are to be married.

Announcement of their engagement was made at the home of Mrs. Laughlin's parents, the William Larimer Mellons, of Darlington road, where Mrs. Laughlin, with her young son, has made her home since her husband died two years ago.

Hitchcock for several years was a star and captain of the United States polo team which took part in the Olympics.

Plans for the impending marriage were not announced, and there was speculation as to whether the couple would spend their honeymoon on the new Mellon yacht Vagabondia. It was announced in New York yesterday that the new yacht, a clipper steam Deisel, built in Germany, was being made ready for a winter cruise in the West Indies and southern waters. It is the third yacht to be acquired by W. L. Mellon, who is a nephew of Secretary of the Treasury A. W. Mellon.

Alexander Laughlin, Jr., died in the West Penn Hospital two years ago under an anaesthetic following removal of a tooth.

Girl Struck by Auto Dies of Her Injuries

Viola Dolinar, 8, of Library, died in Mercy Hospital last night of a fracture of the skull suffered when she was struck by an automobile near her home November 22. The machine was driven, morgue attaches say, by Dr. Emmett Davis, also of Library, who took the girl to the hospital.

Country Warned Against "Flu" Epidemic

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5.—(INS.)—The public health service today issued a warning against an influenza epidemic which threatens to sweep the country.

Dr. R. C. Williams, assistant surgeon general, declared there are 15,000 cases concentrated principally in nine states.

He advised the people to avoid crowds, watch the diet and sleep in the fresh air.

EXCHANGE SEAT HERE UP $9,500

By GEORGE H. SNYDER.

Expansion of the Pittsburgh Stock Exchange into a market of great national importance is predicted on Fourth avenue as a result of an advance of $9,500 in the price of seats during the past three days.

The buying of memberships on the local exchange by several large New York brokerage houses caused the price to jump from $3,000 to $12,500. Sales were made yesterday at $5,000, $8,000 and $10,100. This morning a transaction was closed at $12,500 and present negotiations are now said to be centered around a figure of $15,000.

DIVIDING BURDEN

The possibilities of a reciprocal arrangement between the New York Stock Exchange and the outlying markets to lighten the burden of unprecedented volume on the central trading point is being rumored.

The fact that the Pittsburgh exchange is a member of the Associated Stock Exchanges, with its seats selling at a lower figure than most of the member organizations in other cities, is also a factor. A member of any one of the exchanges may place an order through a member exchange in another city and split the commission.

The Boston and Chicago exchanges are not now members of this organization, but it is rumored that they are to be brought in. This would vastly increase the value of the seats on the local market.

DIVERT TRADING

One broker states that he believes the proposal to increase the membership of the New York Stock Exchange has fallen through.

That body will now use its influence to divert trading to other points as the only solution of its overwhelming business.

Until the sudden increase in the price of Pittsburgh memberships took place, the value of the real estate owned was greater than the total price of the 115 memberships.

The recent transactions have taken place in the name of R. V. Nuttal & Co., but it is known that this firm is merely acting as a representative for New York buyers.

KING REPORTED AS "SLOWLY IMPROVING"

International News Service.

LONDON, Dec. 5.—It was learned from an authoritative source this afternoon that King George is making "slow but satisfactory progress," said the Exchange Telegraph.

Queen Mary and her daughter, Viscountess Lascelles, took their customary automobile ride in the afternoon.

A medical bulletin of King George's physicians indicated, however, that His Majesty was suffering from renewed activity of the infection in his chest.

Lord Dawson of Penn returned to Buckingham Palace shortly after 2 o'clock this afternoon to join his colleague, Sir Stanley Hewett, in a consultation concerning the King's condition. It was stated, however, that an afternoon bulletin was not expected to be issued today, as was done yesterday.

WALES RUSHING HOME

A dispatch to the Evening Standard from Aden, Arabia, says that the cruiser Enterprise arrived there at noon today with the Prince of Wales, who is hurrying home to his father's bedside.

There was nothing specific in the morning bulletin regarding the King's temperature. Nor was anything said as to how his heart was reacting to the long strain of illness which, it had been strongly reiterated recently, was the vital point upon which the King's chances of recovery from his grave illness rested.

The bulletin was signed by Sir Stanley Hewett and Lord Dawson of Penn and read:

"The King has passed a fair night. There are reasons to hope

The first severe cold wave of the season gripped Pittsburgh today, starting the mercury on a predicted 30-degree drop to between 10 and 15 degrees above zero by tomorrow morning.

At 3 o'clock this afternoon government instruments recorded a 29-degree temperature, compared with 46 degrees at midnight yesterday.

Light snow flurries today marked the arrival of the frigid spell and these will continue tonight, Brotzman said.

GETS EARLY START

The mercury began falling at 2 a. m., and continued to slump throughout the day. The frigid belt extends from the northern states to Texas and will continue here until Friday, the weather bureau stated. Warnings were broadcast to shippers.

"The peak of the cold likely will come tonight," said Brotzman, "when the mercury will go to about 10 in the outlying districts.

"WARMER FRIDAY"

"There should be some warming up by late tomorrow and considerable moderation by Friday."

The cold came on the heels of rain late yesterday and last night. The decline of the mercury was keenly felt by pedestrians today as it was accompanied by a 20-mile-an-hour wind.

HOOVER IN PERU, WINS ACCLAIM

By LAWRENCE SULLIVAN.

International News Service.

LIMA, Peru, Dec. 5.—President-elect Herbert Hoover of the United States brought his message of peace and good will to this ancient capital today and the response was inspiring in its nation-wide cordiality. It was a triumphal entry after the eight-mile automobile ride from Callao between lines of saluting cavalry.

The Hoover party rode beneath arches bearing banners with the inscription:

"Welcome, Hoover, the symbol of a great people."

Mr. Hoover rode in an automobile with representatives of the Peruvian government and the United States ambassador, Alexander P. Moore.

Escorted by the Peruvian cruiser Almirante Grau, the Maryland dropped anchor in the Callao roadstead early in the morning to be saluted by all the other craft in the harbor.

Mr. Hoover was awake and up before the Maryland came to anchor and preparations were quickly completed for receiving the Peruvian foreign minister on board.

DECLARE HOLIDAY

Despite the early hour a large crowd had collected on the harbor front when the Maryland came to anchor at 6:30 o'clock.

A national holiday had been declared and the city was filled with visitors.

The quay and most of the buildings throughout the city flew the Peruvian and United States flags.

Huge bouquets of flowers, entwined with bunting in the colors of the United States and Peru, reposed on the balconies on the

NO ROOM LEFT IN COOLIDGE BUDGET

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3.—(AP.)—Voicing again his plea for governmental economy, President Coolidge submitted to Congress today a budget for the fiscal year 1930, calling for expenditures of $3,780,719,647, leaving the Treasury with an estimated $60,576,182 surplus which he declared offered no immediate prospect of further tax reduction.

The estimated surplus, which would be available June 30, 1930, is based upon expected revenue totaling $3,841,295,829. Describing the surplus as small, the President said it was nevertheless "satisfactory as it points to a balanced budget."

WARNS OF SPENDING

Mr. Coolidge warned Congress that "it is clear that we cannot assume any great additional expenditure without jeopardizing this favorable outlook."

The total appropriations recommended by the President to pay for governmental operations during the year beginning next July 1 exceed those in last year's budget by $223,782,616. The largest outlay is for national defense—$648,511,300.

The next largest item in the budget is for the care of war veterans, expenses under this subdivision being estimated to total $597,376,000 for next year, an increase of $26,871,520 over the estimated cost of this year.

Flood control cost is fixed at $31,000,000 for 1930 and the executive said that if it should develop that more money was needed a further estimate would be presented to Congress.

In his message President Coolidge called attention to the French debt, observing that on August 1, 1929, bonds of the French government amounting to $400,000,000 will mature.

NAVAL OUTLAY

The budget calls for an outlay for the Navy next year of $13,805,939 less than the cost of its estimated operation this year. In asking for

DuPont, Ill, Resigns His Seat in Senate

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5.—(INS.)—Senator Coleman DuPont (Rep.), of Delaware, has forwarded his resignation from the Senate to Vice President Dawes, it was learned here today.

The resignation probably will be announced in the Senate during the day.

DuPont, elected to the Senate in the Coolidge landslide of 1924, was stricken with a serious throat illness some time ago and has been unable to attend to his senatorial duties for the last two years.

Bill Would Call Back Roberts, Oil Counsel

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5.—(INS.)—Owen J. Roberts, who resigned as special government oil counsel, would be re-engaged and allowed to practice before government departments, under a resolution introduced today by Senator Walsh (D.), of Montana.

Walsh explained Roberts would take the position again if he were allowed to continue his private practice before government departments from which he was excluded by a Justice Department ruling.

ATLANTA, Ga., Dec. 5.—(AP.)—Angered because jail attaches would not allow him to use the telephone, Spurgeon Cowart, held on a charge of drunkenness, attempted to shoot his way out early today. Friends stated he was much cheered by a cable received from his former wife and read to him in a lucid moment.

"Fight hard, Jaime, fight hard," it read.

"Tell her I'm fighting," Del Rio is reported to have said before lapsing into unconsciousness.

LIFER KILLED TRYING TO SHOOT HIS WAY OUT

NEW YORK, Dec. 5.—Sidney Weiss, alias "Whitey," was shot and killed in a courtroom here today after wounding an attendant as he attempted to evade a sentence of life imprisonment by shooting his way out of the room where he was about to be sentenced.

On being led before Judge George L. Donnelly for sentence after a fourth conviction of robbery, Weiss pulled a gun from his pocket and fired three shots.

One shot struck Court Attendant Al Williams in the hand, the other two going wild. Williams and Leo Kallstrand, another court attendant, grappled with Weiss.

Kallstrand was struck over the head by Weiss' gun and Weiss had leveled his pistol at Capt. John Doyle and pulled the trigger. The gun jammed and Doyle fired twice, instantly killing Weiss.

Police believe Weiss had attempted to take the life of Judge Donnellan, who had been largely instrumental in breaking up a gang of which Weiss was a member.

It is believed that Weiss obtained the gun in Tombs prison just before being taken to the courtroom.

BUDGET BARS NEW TAX CUT

$349,125,482 for the department, the President said that it would have available an additional $2,000,000 from the naval supply account. The appropriation will provide for the continuing of the work on naval vessels now under construction, for commencing work on three remaining fleet submarines, for continuing the five-year program for development of naval aeronautics and for completion of the dredging of Pearl Harbor, Hawaii.

INCREASE FOR ARMY

The Army is allotted $464,485,222, an increase of $31,959,053. Of the increase $20,000,000 is listed as a deficiency for 1928, leaving an actual increase for 1930 of $12,000,000. This is due, the executive said, to automatic advance of officers to higher pay, an increase in the officer strength of the Army in order to provide Air Corps officers, an increase in the amount for the housing program, an increase in the amount for the Air Corps provided under the five-year expansion program and an increase in the amounts required for flood control work on the Mississippi and Sacramento rivers.

Requirements of reduction in the public debt, and interest on the public debt added more than a billion dollars to the budget total. Sinking requirements for 1930 are estimated at $379,124,129, an increase of approximately $9,250,000 over the estimates for the current year, while other redemptions of public debt it was estimated would require $173,542,500, an increase of approximately $1,200,000. For the principal of the public debt $553,067,629, an increase of $11,000,000 was allowed and interest on the public debt was estimated at $640,000,000, a decrease of $35,000,000.

POSTAL ALLOTMENT

The Postoffice Department was allotted a total of $816,209,225, an increase of $41,504,480; the Department of Agriculture expenditures for 1930 were estimated at $157,016,931, an increase of $4,899,770, while the Department of Commerce estimated expenditures were $58,450,740, an increase of $17,867,729.

The estimates of cost of the Treasury Department for the next year was placed at $341,658,615, an increase of $10,359,530 over this year's estimated cost.

Provision is made in the estimates for carrying on the $290,000,000 public buildings program with a total of $28,040,000 to meet the 1930 requirements.

Boy Flier, Machine Fixed, on Way Again

MERCER, Pa., Dec. 5.—(AP.)—Richard E. James, 17-year-old aviator of New York, took off from a wheat field near here shortly before 1 p. m. today to continue his flight to New York for a $1,000 prize. The boy brought his plane down late yesterday after failing to locate the Mercer flying field. Young James is flying from San Francisco to New York. He took off yesterday from Cleveland, planning to fly to Bellefonte, Pa., but he landed near here shortly before darkness fell because he had no lights on his ship. The propeller of the plane was broken and it otherwise was damaged slightly. A new propellor was obtained this morning and repairs made.

ARTIST FINDS BEAUTY LIES IN "BEING ALIVE"

NEW YORK, Dec. 5.—Beauty isn't a matter of figure or face. It is a question of being interested and alive.

This is the modern woman's secret of beauty, according to Mary MacKinnon, whose paintings of notable society women appear in Harper's Bazar.

Mrs. MacKinnon, interviewed at the opening of her exhibition of portraits in the Helen Hackett Gallery, said:

"The women of today reduces everything to the simplest form, keeping the natural lines of her head and figure. She eliminates all detail that does not have a definite significance."

On the wall, a portrait of Mrs. Ray Long, charming, simple, gracious, seemed to illustrate her point. A little farther along, Michael Strange's eager face looked out from a delicate canvas. Mrs. Carl Van Vechten, in an old-fashioned black gown against a quaintly patterned flowered background, looked very interesting.

"Ideals of beauty change," said Mrs. MacKinnon. "Today it is the expression of an active life.

"I paint what we call society women, but they themselves would smile at being called that. They are people who do things—women who are interested in other things beside themselves.

"The so-called society woman uses society as a part of her day, just as her husband does; but she has other interests—artistic, professional, philanthropic."

Mrs. MacKinnon originally started out as a fashion artist, but she has left that far behind.

HEIRESS WORKS IN SHOP

Lady Doria was standing, and after a few expressions of amazement exclaimed, "Why how do you do, Lady Doria?"

NOT HIDING

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5. — New York society may be all agog over the finding of Lady Doria Hope at work in a shop, but to her Washington friend and hostess, Mrs. Frederick Brooke, there is nothing unusual about the situation.

Mrs. Brooke, an old friend of Lady Doria's family, today told reporters that the titled English visitor accepted employment in the shop simply because she wanted to have "something to do" while her chum and companion, Miss Leonora Highet, studied and worked in a New York interior decorator's studio.

The girls are not in hiding, Mrs. Brooke said, but were "terrified" by the New York reporters and photographers, and slipped out of New York for the week-end.

"Miss Highet wishes to study American methods of interior decorating, and made arrangements to study and work in a New York studio. Lady Doria wanted something to do while her chum was studying, and for that reason she decided to learn all she could by working in one of the Fifth avenue stores," said Mrs. Brooke.

Perhaps one reason why Lady Doria was fortunate enough to obtain quick work in New York and an apartment at the insignificant sum of $35 monthly in that fairly well-known town is that the famous and always sinister Hope diamond to which she would have fallen heir was sold some years ago to Edward Beale McLean, Washington publisher.

Young McLean (then young) secretly bought the diamond for his wife who was Evelyn Walsh, daughter of the Denver mining king. Their oldest son, at that time called the $100,000,000 baby, was the heir apparent to the McLean-Walsh millions. A few years after McLean bought the Hope diamond the child, then about 6 years old, was killed by a truck when he stepped out of the gateway of the magnificent McLean estate, "Friendship," in Washington.

Father Confident Lady Doria Can Care for Self

LONDON, Dec. 5.—(INS.)—"My daughter Doria is a very independent girl, but level headed," commented the Duke of Newcastle when informed today by International News Service that his daughter, Lady Doria Hope had temporarily "gone to trade" in New York as a shop girl.

The duke expressed surprise, but was not disturbed, evidently content in his own mind that Lady Doria could take care of herself. He received the news calmly that his daughter had quit her $25 a week job when her identity was discovered.

It developed that Lady Doria did not take her family into her confidence before she launched out "upon her own" in New York.

HOUSE TACKLES BILLION DOLLAR EXPENSE BILLS

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5.—(AP.)—A billion-dollar appropriation bill greeted the House today in its first real business session—the Treasury and Postoffice departments joining together in asking Congress for $1,116,675,389 to carry on their business during the next fiscal year.

The bill was the first of the nine annual supply measures to come before the short session, and probably will be taken up by the House tomorrow.

DRY BUDGET RAISED

The measure, carrying $22,640,000 for continuing work on 137 federal buildings project heretofore initiated, and $13,500,000 for prohibition enforcement—the largest ever to be provided for this work—represented an increase of $20,245,806 over the current appropriation and a decrease of $2,737,370 from the 1930 budget estimates.

The Postoffice Department would be given the bulk of the total, $818,215,725, an increase of $26,990,683 over current appropriations, while the Treasury would get $303,459,664, a decrease of $18,744,877.

MOSTLY FOR SALARIES

The figure for prohibition enforcement topped the previous high reached in the fiscal year 1928, when it was $13,320,405, and represented an increase of $770,869 over current funds, $777,164 of which was said to be needed to take care of salary increases under the amended classification act.

Moving swiftly and with little debate, the House today passed the Britten bill to authorize $14,809,000 for alterations and repairs to the battleships Pennsylvania and Arizona. It now goes to the Senate. Chairman Britten of the Naval Committee, in explaining the bill, said that $7,499,000 would be spent in alterations on the Pennsylvania and $7,310,000 on the Arizona.

Verdict Against Director Clark

Judgment for $722.28 was entered in County Court against Public Safety Director James M. Clark, in the suit of Herman Windt. In 1926 Windt bought property in the Boulevard of the Allies near Smithfield street, from Clark, with the stipulation, it is alleged, that Clark was to pay the back taxes. Failure to pay the taxes caused Windt to file suit, and judgment was entered when Clark failed to appear to defend the action.

ADEN, Arabia, Dec. 5.—(AP.)—The British cruiser Enterprise, bearing the Prince of Wales on his hurried return from Africa to the bedside of his father, entered the harbor here at noon today, leaving almost immediately for Suez.

Deny U. S. Envoy Urged Naval Pact

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5.—(AP.)—The State Department announced today that Hugh Gibson, American delegate to the Geneva disarmament conference, was not responsible for Anglo-French naval accord. Secretary Kellogg said Mr. Gibson never suggested that France and Great Britain make any such agreement.

WRESTLING, HE SLIPS, DROWNS

The body of Frank Elrick, 21, of 598 Hazelwood avenue, was recovered from the Monongahela River at the Smithfield Street Bridge at noon today, where it had floated from Lock No. 1, Second avenue. Elrick was the victim of a drunken wrestling match on the river bank early today.

Police are holding John Forlen, 21, of 5412 Sunnyside street; James Whalen, 24, of 324 Johnston avenue; James Broelerick, 22, of 5122 Second avenue, and James Schrier, 22, of 4824 Chatsworth street. They are charged with being suspicious persons and were turned over to the coroner by Magistrate John J. Orie in Central Police Court.

According to police, the five men had been drinking in Glenwood last night, and while driving downtown in Elrick's automobile decided to stop and wrestle on the lawn of the lockkeeper's residence. During the tussle Elrick slipped over the bank into the water at the entrance to the lock. He struggled for a moment and then disappeared.

The government delegation which boarded the Maryland at her anchorage two miles off the shore was headed by Dr. Pedro Jose Rada Y Gamio, president of the cabinet and foreign minister. He shook hands with Mr. Hoover, Henry P. Fletcher and other officials of the good will party and expressed the welcome of the republic and the president.

MOORE AT PIER

Alexander P. Moore, United States ambassador, arrived at the pier and joined the official welcoming party shortly before Mr. Hoover's arrival. There were hundreds of school children lining the route from the pier to a nearby plaza where the President-elect was officially welcomed.

Dr. Carlos Roe, Mayor of Callao, greeted the President-elect and extended an official welcome in behalf of the municipality and the people of the port.

As the Hoover party was coming ashore a Peruvian airplane flew over the harbor and circled over the launch.

During Mr. Hoover's stay in Peru 600 sailors from the Maryland were granted shore leave, this being the first "liberty" they have had since the warship left San Pedro, Cal., on November 19. Many of them began their Christmas shopping here while others hurried on to Lima ahead of the Hoover party.

NOISY GREETING

A shore battery fired a salute of 21 guns and hundreds of ships in the harbor cut loose with their whistles and sirens as the launch left the Maryland to bear Mr. Hoover ashore after the formalities on the deck of the warship.

In addition to the Almirante Grau, which had accompanied the Maryland down the coast from Guayaquil Gulf, a sister cruiser, the Coronel Bolognesi, drew abeam of the giant American man of war as she moved into the harbor to her anchorage station.

The weather was cool and clear.

RECEPTION, DINNER

In the afternoon, the Hoover party will be taken on a sight-seeing tour accompanied by the city's mayor and other officials.

There will then be a reception at the American embassy. In the evening a state dinner will be held in the presidential palace. All the leading figures of Peru will attend. After the dinner, the American party will return to the Maryland.

It is expected that Mr. Hoover will receive officials of the Bolivian government off Antofogasta, Chile, on Friday. The Bolivian officials will have to cross Chilean soil in order to reach the Maryland, but this is expected to have a good effect upon the relations of these two nations which are not now of the best because of the Tacna-Arica dispute, which also concerns Peru.

CUPID SNARES PITTSBURGH ACTRESS

Alyce Mills, blonde beauty Pittsburgh contributed to the films, will be married on Saturday to a wealthy young Los Angeles real estate man, William Davey.

This announcement from Hollywood today was verified by Miss Mills' sister, Mrs. Carl Hermann, Jr., of 322 Dunlap avenue, North Side, herself a former screen beauty.

Miss Mills retired from the films a year ago after co-starring with Richard Dix in "Say It Again." Since then, with her mother, she has been living in Beverly Hills, Cal.

Mrs. Hermann said the couple will spend their honeymoon in Honolulu on the Davey yacht, this voyage to be followed by a trip to Europe.

ALLEGHENY STUDENT

Ten years ago Alyce Mills was a student in Allegheny High School, with aspirations to test her ability in the movies. Both she and her sister were selected for parts in a picture made in Pittsburgh under the auspices of the Safety Council—"In the Name of the Law."

Their work in this, their first picture, furnished the opportunity for motion picture careers. And both deserted the cinema for matrimony, the one to wed a Pittsburgher, the other for the young Californian.

RIO CHEERED BY EX-WIFE

Dolores Del Rio, vivacious Mexican screen beauty, clung anxiously to a slender thread of hope that the life of her former husband, Jaime Martinez Del Rio, be spared.

Wearied from long hours of sleeplessness, the film star remained in virtual seclusion at her home, waiting for a message from Berlin that may bring the glad tidings of Jaime Del Rio's victory in his fight against death.

DIVORCED IN APRIL

Divorced from him last April, Miss Del Rio nevertheless expressed her deep solicitude for her former husband's welfare. It was Hollywood and the silver sheet that parted the young couple after seven years of married life. It was illness that reunited them, not in marital bonds, but in the ties of friendship.

Sorrow clothed Miss Del Rio's words as she continued:

"It is awful to think of him dying. He was so happy, so full of dreams."

From his sick bed the young Mexican writer continually calls for his former wife, according to cabled dispatches reaching Miss Del Rio. The cabled messages come from Dr. Van Lunt, Del Rio's physician.

WILKINS FIXES ENGINE ON IMMERSED PLANE

By SIR HUBERT WILKINS.

(Copyright, 1928, by New York American and Universal Service.)

DECEPTION ISLAND (Antarctica), Dec. 3.—(Delayed.)—(Via Whaler Hektorta and Kup—San Francisco Examiner Wireless Station.)—The engine of our Lockheed plane City of Los Angeles which, with Lieut. Ben Eielson on board, fell through the ice into the sea last Saturday, is in working order again.

It seems to be in perfect condition. New propellor blades have replaced the twisted ones. Two ship's carpenters are at work repairing the hole in the wing and by tomorrow night the machine should be in flying trim.

We shall fly it on pontoons to inspect an island about 50 miles distant and on which there appears to be smooth slopes suitable for landing fields.

DECEPTION ISLAND, Dec. 4.—High wind and piercing cold delayed repairs to our airplane today. Wind-born tears froze to our lashes, and noses and finger tips were nipped. We abandoned work, awaiting better weather.

STATE STRIKES AT YORK WITCHCRAFT PRACTICE

Council To Rule Britain

FOSTER MUSIC SHRINE WILL RISE IN OAKLAND

3 KILLERS HELD FOR COURT

YORK, Pa., Dec. 5.—(AP.)—A campaign was under way today to stamp out the practice of witchcraft, revealed to be widespread in this region following the slaying of Nelson D. Rehmeyer, who refused to give a lock of his hair demanded by a "pow wow doctor" to break a spell.

At a conference last night between Coroner L. U. Zech and Col. James Duffy, chief of the bureau of field inspection of the State Department of Health, plans were laid for co-operation of state and local authorities in the campaign. The coroner's records showed that several children had died within the last two years after treatment by "pow wow doctors."

A resolution will be presented tomorrow night at a meeting of the York County Medical Society asking that organization to aid in stamping out witchcraft practices.

SLAYERS BOUND TO COURT

The three confessed slayers of Rehmeyer, John Blymyer, 32, Wilbert G. Hess, 18, and John Curry, 15, were committed to jail today to await the action of the grand jury in January.

At the hearing before Alderman W. F. Owen, the only witness against the prisoners was Ralph W. Keech, a detective, who testified that the defendants had confessed to killing Rehmeyer. No evidence of the motive for the killing was presented.

Blymyer is alleged to be a "pow-wow doctor," and confessed he was engaged to break a spell over members of Hess' family. Blymyer took young Hess and Curry with him to the home of Rehmeyer. When Rehmeyer refused to give up a lock of his hair, he was attacked and killed, the confessions said, according to the police. The prisoners have said they did not intend to slay him.

Col. Duffy was bitter in his denunciation of those who prey upon the credulity of innocent persons, often not of average intelligence, by holding out that they have the power to cure ills by some occult power which they claim to possess.

The coroner's records revealed that several children who have died within the past two years had no medical attention but "pow-wow" treatment.

VIOLATE STATE LAW

So long as the witchcraft doctors charge fees for their services they are violating the state law compelling examination and licensing of physicians and other legitimate healers, and come within the jurisdiction of the state medical board of licensure.

"Pow-wowism" and belief in witchcraft is suspected as the cause of several other mysterious deatns in the York section in recent years, continue to hold a strange power over the lives of many persons in remote rural sections of eastern and central Pennsylvania.

The belief in the efficiency of pow-wowing seems to be strongest among the isolated descendants of the Pennsylvania Germans.

Many of these people believe in the reality of the witches described in the fairy tales of Hans Anderson. Children are entrusted to the care of the pow-wow doctor with greater confidence than to a medical doctor.

So it happened that when chickens of a family in York county started dying and a road leading past the house was closed, the members of the family believed a spell of bad luck had been cast over them and they sought the help of a witch doctor to break the spell. Odd or ridiculous remedies frequently are prescribed, and the procedure of clipping a lock of Rehmeyer's hair and burying it eight feet underground to break the spell would not impress a believer in witchcraft as too ridiculous.

A list of the strange rites which the belief prescribes and the effect each is supposed to produce would in itself fill a large encyclopedia. The rite almost never is excercised without a charm of talisman which is supposed to have the occult powers.

WIDOW FIGHTS FOR DISPUTED INSURANCE

Jewelry alleged to have been worn by her husband was identified in Federal Court today by Mrs. Leanora Howe, of Erie, in her suit to prove that he died when his auto was burned in November, 1927, and to recover his insurance, amounting to $45,000.

She identified a Masonic charm, dental bridgework and five keys which were alleged to have been found in the ruins of the automobile. Physicians previously had testified that a body found in the ruins of the car had been charred beyond recognition.

Attorneys for the defendant, the Fidelity and Casualty Company of New York, have indicated they will seek to prove Howe did not die as alleged. Witnesses have been asked on cross-examination whether they have seen or heard of Howe since the fire which destroyed his car.

REPLY OF P. R. R. ON TERMINAL AWAITED

President James F. Malone, of Council, today is awaiting a reply from Pennsylvania Railroad Company officials to a letter requesting them to meet a committee of city executives who will urge the company to erect a passenger terminal comparable with the extensive freight and produce terminals now under way.

Some time ago the city gave the railroad company the area of Liberty avenue from Eleventh street to Sixteenth street in exchange for land to be used in widening Spring way.

Malone recently obtained Council's concurrence in asking the railroad company to acquire land on the south side of Penn avenue and donate it to the city so that Penn avenue might be widened to 120 feet between Eleventh street and the eastern boundary of the company's present improvement program.

In return for the land deed for the widening of Penn avenue, Malone proposed giving Spring way to the railroad company, thereby affording it a continuous area from Bigelow boulevard wall to the proposed south line of Penn avenue.

WIDENING PENN AVENUE

In addition to widening Penn avenue in the area of the railroad company's pending improvement schedule, Malone outlined a method of widening that thoroughfare to the Wilkinsburg line.

Councilmen appointed by Malone to negotiate for the proposed passenger station are R. J. Alderdice, Robert Garland, John S. Herron, P. J. McArdle and Daniel Winters. Others invited to serve are Charles M. Reppert, the city's chief engineer; Thomas M. Benner, first assistant city solicitor, and Louis W. Monteverde, chairman of the City Planning Commission.

Malone's letter to the Pennsylvania Railroad Company was addressed to Vice President E. T. Whiter.

AUDITORIUM WILL COST $500,000

A national shrine of music dedicated to the memory of Stephen Collins Foster, famed Pittsburgh composer whose melodies are sung throughout the world, will be erected in the Oakland district in the near future, it was announced today by the board of governors of the Tuesday Musical Club.

According to present estimates, it will cost $500,000 to complete the structure, which is expected to achieve for Pittsburgh in music a position comparable to that it holds in art through the International Exhibition.

It is planned to finance the memorial through an appeal throughout Pennsylvania and probably the nation, although its most intensive presentation will be made in Pittsburgh and Allegheny county. The movement will culminate in a fund-raising effort in April.

The building will be erected on a plot set aside for it by the University of Pittsburgh on the eastern part of the Cathedral of Learning quadrangle, bounded by Forbes street, Bellefield avenue, Fifth avenue and Bigelow boulevard. Preliminary sketches are being prepared by the university architect, Charles Z. Klauder, designer of the cathedral.

The idea of the memorial originated with the Tuesday Musical Club and in its present form is the result of two years' planning. It is pointed out that although Stephen Collins Foster has brought to Pittsburgh as much renown as any of her sons and while memorials have been erected in his name in Kentucky, on the Suwanee River and elsewhere, the only recognition thus far given him in his native city is a bronze tablet on a house in Penn avenue, near where he was born and spent his boyhood, and a statue in Highland Park erected through contributions made by school children. The building will stand as a symbol of its twofold purpose. Among its interior features will be an auditorium with a seating capacity of 1,000 persons, in the construction of which special care will be given to secure good acoustics. The stage will have ample space to seat a chorus of 100 members. There will be a large rehearsal hall which can also be used as a dining room. Dressing rooms as well as a number of rooms for small gatherings also will be included in the plan.

Members of the ways and means committee are Mrs. A. B. Siviter, chairman; Mrs. W. C. Dierks, Mrs. Gertrude Martin Rohrer, Mrs. H. Talbot Peterson and Mrs. Thomas Cree.

The advisory committee members are Mrs. Taylor Allderdice, Mrs. Waldemar Dyrssen, Mrs. Oliver S. Hershman, Mrs. Joseph W. Marsh, Madame Fitz-Randolph and Mrs. Minna Kaufmann Ruud.

McGovern was against asking state aid.

MALTA CIRCUS PROVIDES THRILLS AND LAUGHTER

The "big top" with all its regular attractions, performing elephants, lions, ponies, monkeys, dogs, rollicking clowns and clever acrobats, is here. It is a genuine two-ring circus at Motor Square Garden, sponsored by the Malta Temple Association of Pittsburgh for the organization's building fund. It paraded through the East Liberty district at noon today.

Twice a day, at 2 o'clock in the afternoon and 8 o'clock in the evening, 22 acts are staged in the two rings, lasting two hours. The four Gentry elephants provide the feature attraction. They dance, stand on their hind legs, execute acrobatics and many tricks that delight the children and grown-ups. Sheep and goats do other tricks. Ponies perform as only ponies can. Monkeys and dogs execute a number of tricks that are almost human. Trapeze performers swing high in the air. Three clowns relieve the tension with jokes and slapstick comedy. Tex Allen, an armless performer, fires a rifle and pistol with his teeth and never misses the bull's-eye.

In the grand finale, two lions are released into a large steel cage where sits complacently their trainer, Madame Schultz. She pets them like little children. As a horse-drawn carriage enters the cage, the lions jump atop the conveyance and the trainer takes her place on the seat. As the carriage begins to move, a pigeon is released and gently lands on the head of one of the lions.

Provided a clergyman or justice of the peace will enter the lions' cage, a wedding ceremony will be performed in the cage next Thursday. Two members of the circus troupe are eager to have the nuptial knot tied in this manner. The wedding will take place even if the minister of justice of the peace consents to officiate only outside the steel bars.

MELLON FINDS TRADE HOLDS UP WELL

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5.—(AP)—Bandying about sums running into the billions, Secretary Mellon has found that business, which reached a low point in November and December of 1926, finished the fiscal year ending June 30 only 3 per cent below that of the previous 12 months.

In his annual report, the financial chief of the administration crams into a 91-page pamphlet a formidable array of figures showing the intricate fiscal operations of the government and dealing in detail with agriculture, customs affairs, taxes, business conditions, prohibition, and a great many other things and with scarcely a note of pessimism for the future.

Liquor Flow Less

Agriculture as a whole, he says, made substantial gains. Automobile production experienced a major turn for the better during the year. Export trade was but slightly under the previous year and imports had but a small decline. As to liquor, he says only about 5,000,000 gallons was identified in foreign ports as presumably destined for the United States against 14,000,000 gallons the previous year.

Incidentally the secretary says that diversion of legal liquor, including industrial alcohol, is no longer the major problem of domestic law enforcement, but that illicit manufacture from sugars and grain is the principal source of supply of the domestic market. The prevention of drug smuggling he believes to have been improved.

At the opening of the fiscal year, the secretary says, the volume of busines was nearly on a par with the year previous, but soon fell off, reaching its minimum in the last two months of 1927. In January recovery took place and the monthly volume thereafter was sustained about equal to the same months of the previous year.

Crop Prices Better

"There was an increase both in prices and in total cash returns for crops and products of the year 1926-27, this increase representing the net result of gains in some products and losses in others," he says of agriculture. "The average price received by the farmers during the fiscal year increased about seven per cent while there was a slight decrease in the prices paid by farmers for their purchases, according to price data compiled by the United States Department of Agriculture. The advantage of this increase in average prices per unit produced was partly offset by a decrease in volume. As the net effect of these two forces, the estimated gross cash income from farm products increased in the fiscal or crop year of 1927-28 by $579,000,000 or 1.8 per cent as compared with the preceding crop year."

As to automobiles he says monthly figures indicate that a general decline which began in November, 1925, reached its lowest point in November and December 1927, and that the year ended with June-July production nearly 3% per cent above the production of the same months of 1927. The total for the year, however, was 12 per cent below that of the previous year.

Imports Decrease

Export trade, the Secretary says, reached a total value of $4,877,000,000, a decrease of 1.8 per cent over the previous year while imports aggregated $4,146,000,000, a decrease of 2.5 per cent as compared to 1927.

In reviewing the financial situation Secretary Mellon calls attention that the gold stock of the United States decreased nearly $500,000,000 from the $4,600,000,000 on hand at the beginning of the year. The outward movement of gold, he says, had a far-reaching effect.

"It has contributed to the restoration and fortification of the gold basis for the currencies of various countries. It has influenced our credit situation and the policy of the Federal Reserve Board.

"Between June 30, 1927, and June 30, 1928, there was an increase of more than $500,000,000 in the total amount of credit the Federal Reserve banks were called upon to provide, due largely to the unprecedented gold exports. The increase in Federal Reserve credit took the form of an increase in borrowing by member banks. Owing to the traditional reluctance of American banks to remain in debt and the policy of the Federal Reserve banks to discourage continuous indebtedness the banks found themselves at the close of the year in a position to lend much less freely than a year previous."

Low Money Rate

The Secretary reviews the action of the Federal Reserve Board in easing money rates in 1927 by purchasing securities in the open market, which was followed by the outward movement of gold and a new low rate for money in August of that year.

"As it became apparent, first, that the objects of the policy originally adopted were being accomplished, and, second that that speculation was growing, the policy was reversed," he says. "The purchasing of securities was stopped and more than $100,000,000 of securities were sold. Meantime, discount rates were raised from 3½ per cent to 4 per cent.

"However, the action taken early in the year unquestionably was not effective with reference to speculation, partly due to the activities of powerful groups of speculators and partly due to the fact that the public in general believed and acted as if prices of securities would indefinitely advanced."

Raise Discount Rate

When it became apparent last March that repeated increases in credit were taking place for speculative purposes the Federal Reserve Bank, he says, resumed its sale of securities and discount rates were advanced to 5 per cent in all the districts except those of Kansas City, Dallas, Minneapolis and San Francisco, where they remain at 4½ per cent.

In the banking situation, loans and investments of all banks in the country increased $3,500,000,000, or about 6½ per cent, he points out. This was the largest growth since the year ending June 30, 1925.

The total ordinary receipts of the government for the last fiscal year, Secretary Mellon places at $4,042,348,156, a decline of $87,000,000 as compared with the previous fiscal year. Customs receipts declined $26,500,000 to $569,000,000, while income taxes dropped $51,100,000 to $2,173,000,000. Miscellaneous internal revenue taxes declined $23,400,000 to $621,000,000, but payments from foreign governments increased $2,800,000 to $208,900,000.

The total expenditures chargeable against ordinary receipts for the fiscal year, the Secretary fixes at $3,643,519,875, or $149,935,536 more than in the preceding year. The total ordinary expenditures were $3,193,264,874, or $129,235,180 more than the previous year, while it required $540,255,020 for public debt retirements, $20,700,176 more than in the preceding year.

Retire Debts

For the year the surplus of receipts over expenditures amounted to $398,828,281, but most of it, or $307,358,710 had been expended by the end of the year in public debt retirements. It was $237,000,000 less than the year previous.

At the close of the fiscal year the gross public debt of the United States government amounted to $17,604,290,563 and the net cash balance in the general fund of the treasury was $260,190,321. The figures represent a decrease of $305,883,703 in the public debt and an increase of $27,592,310 in the net balance for the year.

In closing his report, Secretary Mellon reiterates his suggestion made a year ago that Congress remove the surtax from government securities as well as the normal tax. This, he says, would remove the disadvantage of the government as compared to state bonds.

Last to Survive Of Custer Band Dies at 75

HOT SPRINGS, S. D., Dec. 5—(AP)—Peter Thompson, 78, said to be the last survivor of the Custer Massacre, died in the Disabled Soldiers Home yesterday.

When, on June 25, 1876, Gen. Custer engaged the Indians in battle, Thompson was lost from his company, and joined the command of Maj. Marcus Reno, on a bluff besieged by the Indians. Meanwhile Gen. Custer and his men had been massacred.

Thompson made several trips to the river. In one trip he was wounded. For his heroism, Thompson later was awarded the congressional medal of honr.

FORNEY LAWYER RENEWS PARDON PLEA IN CAPITAL

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS,
Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5.—Efforts to have Department of Justice give further consideration to the application for a pardon in behalf of Alfred W. Forney, convicted Pittsburgh slot machine king, are expected to be made here today by H. D. Hirsh, Pittsburgh attorney representing Forney.

Hirsh discussed the case with officials of the department yesterday and is expected to seek a conference with Attorney General Sargent today.

As a basis for reopening the case Hirsh will cite the action of the United States District Court at Pittsburgh recently in releasing many of those indicted for conspiracy on the same charge to which Forney pleaded guilty.

Prohibition Administrator Pennington, of Pittsburgh, is understood to have renewed his protest against any consideration of a pardon.

Department officials dropped Forney's application for a pardon a few weeks back after United States District Attorney Meyer, of Pittsburgh, reversed his initial action by withdrawing a recommendation for the slot machine king's release.

U. S. MAY NET 200 IN BORDER RUM PROBE

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5.—(AP)—Treasury officials announced today that the investigation into liquor smuggling from Canada was expected to result in the indictment of 200 bootleggers, smugglers and Canadian distillers and brewers.

A number of indictments of Canadian distillers on charges of violating the liquor smuggling laws were returned yesterday in Buffalo. It was said today at the Treasury that the investigation into the border smuggling situation has been in progress for more than two years and that many more charges would be brought before the grand jury.

BORDER GUARDS HELD

DETROIT, Dec. 5.—(AP)—Three more customs border patrol inspectors were arrested today in connection with the investigation into an alleged liquor smuggling "graft trust" in the customs service.

Seventeen men, 16 inspectors and a former inspector, now are under arrest on charges of conspiracy to accept bribes for permitting the smuggling of liquor into the Detroit area from Canada.

John R. Watkins, U. S. district attorney, who is presenting evidence to a federal grand jury in charge of the investigation, declared new disclosures will result in many more arrests soon.

The men arrested today as they reported for duty are John B. Thayer, Earl A. Hahn and William B. Reynolds. They were ordered held for arraignment.

Big Fingerbowl Theft Awaited In Homestead

Even burglars, it appears, refuse to eat turkey with their fingers. In Homestead early today somebody broke into the Lefkowitz poultry store at Eighth avenue and West street and broke out with 2 turkeys and 40 chickens. A short time later the home of Peter Grime at Homestead Park was burglarized of all its silverware.

SAFETY DRIVE STARTED BY MOTOR CLUB

In the hope that fewer homes in Pittsburgh and vicinity shall be saddened at Christmas time because of the loss of some loved one through an accident involving automobiles, the Pittsburgh Motor Club today institutes a safety campaign whose motto is "Six Seconds for Safety." In Pittsburgh, from January 1 to November 1, 1928, there were 127 automobile fatalities, 19 of the victims being children. This is an appalling total, but the Pittsburgh Motor Club feels that nearly all of these accidents could have been avoided had the participants in the accidents taken just "Six Seconds for Safety."

"Thousands are killed each year," declares Walter Rosenbaum, vice president of the club, "because they fail to allow a few seconds for safety. Six seconds of caution when crossing streets will give you absolute protection against a mishap; a six-second slow-down will safeguard any driver against almost any type of motor vehicle accident. Six seconds for safety is the finest form of accident insurance you can purchase for the folks at home.

"The Pittsburgh Motor Club urges you to make 'Six Seconds for Safety' your motto henceforth and a part of your daily work. The thrifty man keeps a budget, the well-read man makes reading a part of his daily routine; the successful executive organizes his work every day. The 'safe' man will allow a few seconds for safety in his daily activities.

"Begin today. Plan right now on making 'Six Seconds for Safety' your motto henceforth, and a part of your daily work. Keep it uppermost in mind and let it be your guide. You will not have any accidents if you follow this tip.

"Six seconds for safety isn't much time—but six weeks in the hospital is. Street accidents kill 25,775 people every year in the United States, or approximately 70 people every day, all for want of 'Six Seconds for Safety.'

"Beginning today, and every day thereafter until Christmas, there will appear in the Sun-Telegraph a 'Six Seconds for Safety' warning in the form of America's most popular epigram, the 'wise crack.' Watch for them and heed them, that Christmas may find your own family united."

Six Seconds For Safety

"Six feet await many a driver who refuses to give an inch," says the Pittsburgh Motor Club in its safety campaign to keep the sorrow of death and injury from Pittsburgh homes this Christmas, through the medium of safety "wise cracks," which may be easily remembered during that important six seconds necessary to prevent an accident. Remember, 25,775 people were killed in this country last year, in auto accidents.

DRYS RAID CLUB AND 5 OTHER PLACES

A club and two restaurants downtown and two moonshine plants and a store were raided by federal prohibition agents yesterday. The downtown club, on the third floor of 966 Liberty avenue, was found to contain whisky, gin and ale, agents say. Harry Swartz, 28, and Thomas Yost, 35, were arrested and released on $1,000 bond each, according to the raiders.

Esther Walter, 50, was arrested in a raid on a restaurant at 423 Water street, where three quarts of moonshine were reported found. She was liberated on a similar bond. A small quantity of moonshine seized in a restaurant at 107 Grant street resulted in the arrest of Joe Komynsk, 67, and David Lawrence, 25, agents declare.

A partly filled bottle of moonshine on a window sill in a confectionery store at 15 Magee street was confiscated along with several other bottles of whisky in a rear room, the raiders say. H. G. Phillips, reputed proprietor, was arrested.

One of the sources of moonshine supply in the Strip ceased to function when the agents swooped down on a house at 236 Spring way. There a 100-gallon still, 60 gallons of moonshine and other equipment were destroyed. No arrests were made.

Birdie Cronin, 53, was arrested when a 75-gallon still was found, according to agents, in a house at 1403 Main street, Sharpsburg.

YOUTHS FREED IN FUR THEFT

Accused of breaking show windows and stealing $1,500 in furs on display in the shop of Leon Appleman, 626 Penn avenue, four youths, Charles Waddell, 1414 Fifth avenue; Vincent Christi, 5434½ Protectory place; James Savina, 1808 Webster avenue, and August Gianni, 1343 Victory street, were acquitted before Visiting Judge Miles I. Potter in Criminal Court yesterday. Defense attorney contended the defendants were not connected by the evidence with the theft.

Jury to Quiz Police Tomorrow on Cash

The special grand jury was to convene for a brief session today while District Attorney Samuel H. Gardner reviewed police bank accounts and debated upon what police commanders he would call before the jury tomorrow to explain the astonishing bulk of some of those accounts.

Gardner had hoped to get the police officials before the jurors today, but found it a heavier task than he had anticipated to check the involved bank accounts and other evidence which will be summarized in the jury's presentment next week.

Weather Conditions.

The disturbance that appeared over Oklahoma yesterday morning is now well down the St. Lawrence valley. It caused light rains over all the states east of the Mississippi River except in the North, where the precipitation was in the form of snow.

The Northwest high developed rapidly southeastward. It now covers the entire interior of the country with its crest over Missouri; highest barometer, 30.54, at Columbia and Keokuk. This rising barometer caused a decided drop in temperature over the Mississippi valley and the lower Ohio Valley states, freezing weather as far south as Central Texas and 10 degrees above zero in Northern Missouri and as far east as Chicago. To the Dakotas and northward the temperatures are rising again.

NEW CLUE IN DAPPER CASE FIZZLES

Four alleged members of the Arsenal gang are under arrest in Detroit and their explanation of the possession of a doctor's medicine kit, exploded a clue to the murder of Dr. Harry R. Dapper, Carrick physician, last August.

The medicine case is the property of Dr. L. G. Rubenstein, 2001 Wendover street, and was in his auto when it was stolen from in front of his home last Monday night.

The men under arrest are William Winters, 4229 Bruce street; William Cadonic, 4829 Hatfield street, and Thomas Fowler, 3802 Howley street, all of Pittsburgh, and Lawrence O'Donnell, Scranton. A blackjack, two revolvers and a pair of knucklers were found on the prisoners. In addition to the medicine case the men had in their car, police say, two cases of eggs, 10 boxes of chewing gum and four boxes of cigars.

Interest in the Dapper case was revived when Detroit police reported finding the medicine kit. Neither Dr. Dapper's medicine kit nor his automobile have been found.

Mooney, doing business as the Overland-Mooney Company, McKeesport, in Common Pleas Court yesterday. The boy was struck by a truck of the defendant company in Versailles avenue at Hamilton avenue, McKeesport, while at play with other children, it is alleged.

"40 minutes after eating Take Acidine for Health"

I Am Freeing Thousands From Civilization's Greatest Curse

WHAT is it? Acidosis, that dread acid condition that brings sour stomach, gas, indigestion, sick headache, biliousness, chronic head colds, insomnia, and rheumatism to us, weakened as we are from the never-ending acid poisons let loose in our systems as a result of chronic conditions or over-indulgence in food or drink.

My new discovery, ACIDINE, relieves acidosis at once, and with daily use the acid poisons are stopped. Stomach troubles usually vanish; head colds are nearly always prevented or disappear; the blood stream is kept almost free from acid, and the whole system is tuned up and cleaned up without use of dangerous drugs or physics.

Don't suffer from these troubles longer. It doesn't cost you a cent to try ACIDINE, for your druggist will return your money if you are not satisfied after taking one full package.

ACIDINE, in a few short months, has displaced hundreds of other remedies in thousands of homes. It is the world's greatest every-day health protector. It should be in your home at all times. Harmless, efficient, for both adults and children. It will protect yourself and family from all sorts of small illnesses and some serious ones. Your druggist has and recommends it. Money back guarantee.

There is real charm and atmosphere to the carved oak furniture of today that goes back to fine old furniture of England in the 17th century for inspiration. Decorators have realized this and carved oak is being used.

20 CANADIANS INDICTED IN RUM QUIZ

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5.—(AP)—Following the indictment at Buffalo, N. Y., by a grand jury, of scores of more than a score of Canadian distillers and brokers, the Treasury Department announced that investigations disclosed that "powerful combinations" were engaged in the smuggling traffic.

Seymour Lowman, assistant secretary of the treasury in charge of the bureau cooperating in the investigation, declared that the fight against Canadian liquor smugglers would be carried on until the practice was ended.

Eleven members of the customs border patrol at Detroit arrested last week on charges implicating brokers are said to have confessed on details of the smuggling organization.

CANADIANS SAFE

BUFFALO, N. Y., Dec. 5.—(AP)—Federal authorities today were endeavoring to locate several American bootleggers indicted by the Federal grand jury here in connection with the government's drive to stop the heavy flow of liquor from Canada into the United States.

Thirty Canadians, many prominent in the liquor export business, were among those indicted for conspiracy to smuggle liquor into the United States. The offense with which the Canadians are charged is not extraditable.

Among the Canadians indicted are Harry C. Hatch, chairman of the board of directors of Gooderham and Worts, Ltd., Toronto, and of the Hiram Walker Company of Windsor, Ont.; Edward T. Sandem, president of the Taylor and Bate Brewery, St. Catherines, Ont. Herbert C. Hatch and Larry J. McGuinness, members of the liquor brokerage firm of Hatch and McGuinness.

4 HURT IN AUTO CRASH IN PARK

Two couples were injured when an automobile in which they were riding upset when struck by another machine in Schenley Park near Forbes street late last night. All were taken to the Homeopathic Hospital.

J. R. Miller, 30, of 1629 Winterton street, his wife, and Mr. and Mrs. Thermon Stalker, of 1409 Portland street, were cut and bruised. All but Miller were able to leave the hospital.

Miller's car was upset, police say, when struck by one driven by E. A. Phillips, 35, of 22 Almeda street. Miller and Phillips were arrested.

Pershing Considered As Oil Institute Head

CHICAGO, Dec. 5.—(INS)—John J. Pershing was being considered last night for the post of president of the American Petroleum Institute. The institute is holding its annual session here and expects to elect a president today.

The name of President Coolidge was before the convention but it was understood that his statement that he would consider no position until after the expiration of his term as president on March 4 had eliminated him as a choice.

He was knocked unconscious when another machine forced his car off the National road and wrecked it. Three Negro men went to his rescue and dragged him from the wreckage. They then took $68 from his pockets and fled. One arrest has been made.

"NOT GUILTY," NORTHCOTT PLEADS

RIVERSIDE, Cal., Dec. 5.—Repudiating promises repeated up to the last minute, Gordon Stewart Northcott yesterday afternoon in Superior Court pleaded not guilty to the murder of three boys.

Monday night the accused youth terrified investigators by confessing that nine persons had been killed on his chicken ranch near here, and that he himself killed five of them.

Northcott made the confession only after obtaining the written promise of Deputy District Attorney Earl Redwine of Riverside county that he be brought into court today and permitted to plead guilty to slaying Walter Collins, 9; Lewis Winslow, 12, and Alvin Gotler, 10.

Earlier yesterday Northcott increased the list of slain to eleven and admitted he had killed all of them. The other victims he told of were:

Nelson Winslow, 10, of Pomona, Cal.; Richard Gordon, 16, of Canada, a miner, home unknown; a boy, name unknown, and four unidentified men.

Slight Earthquake Alarms Ecuadorans

GUAYAQUIL, Ecuador, Dec. 5.—(AP)—People ran out of their houses in a panic last night when a slight earthquake at 8:42 p. m. shook the city. The earth movement was slight, but the recent disaster at Chile was fresh in every one's mind.

BREAKFAST TABLE SCENE BARED IN ALIENATION TRIAL

A breakfast table scene in the Phoenix, Ariz., home of Raymond Reynolds, son of Mrs. Ella D. Vaughan, of Swissvale, who is on trial in Federal Court on a charge of alienating the affections of her son in an action brought by her daughter-in-law, Mrs. May Reynolds, was described yesterday on the witness stand by Mrs. Lucille L. Hunter, an aunt of Mrs. Reynolds. Mrs. Hunter, witness for the niece, was telling of alleged efforts on the part of Mrs. Vaughan to have her son leave his wife.

The scene was on a morning in December, 1926, according to the witness, the day Mrs. Vaughan was returning to Swissvale after a visit with her son and daughter-in-law. Mrs. Hunter testified that Mrs. Vaughan, at the breakfast table, said to her son: "I will give you money—all you wish—to travel abroad, if you will leave May. (Mrs. Reynolds) and come with me."

The unexpected announcement, Mrs. Hunter said, brought tears to the eyes of May and Raymond and the latter took his wife in his arms and declared that "nothing in God's green earth can separate us." Then, the witness said, Mrs. Reynolds said to her husband: "Now, Ray, this is a trying time and lots of money is at stake, so if you are going to take such a step, now is the time to decide."

"ROW" SUGGESTED

In cross examination of Mrs. Hunter, the defense attorney, W. A. Challener, referred to the alleged breakfast table episode as a "row," and in interrogating the witness asked her if she had ever said that May married beneath her station—that she was the daughter of a judge and Ray was only a fireman. Mrs. Hunter denied making any such statement.

Mrs. Vaughan under direct examination denied the breakfast table conversation and insisted she had not attempted to make her son leave his wife. Over the objections of defense counsel, Mrs. Vaughan was questioned by Attorney Thomas M. Marshall, counsel for Mrs. Reynolds, about her property holdings. Mrs. Vaughan, who was a niece of the late Henry Denniston, of Swissvale, and a beneficiary under his will, said she owned the Browning & King property in Wood street, a house and lot in Swissvale and other properties.

Mrs. Reynolds seeks damages in the sum of $100,000. The trial before Judge F. P. Schoonmaker will be resumed today.

SELF DEFENSE, KILLER'S PLEA

Frank Bolind, 28, of North Fayette township, on trial charged with murder, fatally stabbed Louis Motte, 36, of McDonald, in self-defense, according to the contention of the defense in Criminal Court, where Judge J. H. McCann, of Cambria county, is presiding. The case may be completed and given to the jury today. The stabbing occurred at a dance in North Fayette township last August 31 and the defense contends that defendant was attacked by Motte and his friends.

Woman Was 'Framed' Federal Agents Say

Mollie Williams and Edward Strothers, alias Arnold La Roche, Negroes, were tried yesterday in Federal Court on a charge of selling and possessing drugs. He was acquitted. She was found guilty. Before a three-month jail sentence was imposed upon her, government narcotic officers told Judge Nelson McVicar they believed the woman had been "framed" by Strothers.

Government officers testified to seizing small quantities of narcotics in the home of the woman on Bedford avenue, on November 6, which they said was taken there by Strothers. Strothers denied the allegation. He was represented by Attorney Thomas E. Whitten, a former clerk in the district attorney's office.

Strolling Through Land of Illusion With Reporter and Cameraman

POLA NEGRI TO MAKE FOREIGN MOVIE OF MR. SHAW'S CLEOPATRA PLAY

By REGINA CREWE.

(Copyright, 1928, by King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 4.

THERE is talk here that Pola Negri's plan to appear abroad in a film version of George Bernard Shaw's "Caesar and Cleopatra" may result in overtures to the star for a return to Hollywood. It is understood that Shaw was completely captivated by the Princess M'Divani when they met recently, and is of the opinion that Pola will be a sensational success in the role. Unfortunate selection of stories was responsible more than anything for the waning of Pola's popularity during the last year of her stay at Paramount.

With their proverbial free-handed liberality, the movie colony has oversubscribed its quota for the community chest fund which is annually devoted to charities. Cecil B. De Mille is in charge of the movie drive, and his lieutenants solicited aid from each of the 22 important studios in Hollywood. The total amount subscribed to the chest will approach $3,000,000. The film folk always do more than their share.

William Boyd isn't superstitious as a rule. But in the future he'll think twice before beginning a picture on the thirteenth of the month. In making "Leathernecks," with Alan Hale and Robert Armstrong, Bill suffered three cracked ribs, a six-stitch cut on his head, and four sprained fingers. But in any event he hasn't had the "flu," which many have.

Mary Pickford To Light Trees

MARY PICKFORD is busy sending 1,200 letters to residents of Beverly Hills asking them to have a ranch where the city slickers pay town Christmas trees ready for lighting on December 15. On that night a huge city tree will flash into illumination, and at the same time the trees of the 1,200 will have their lights switched on. Mary's big estate, "Pickfair," is dotted with fir and pine trees, all of which will be illuminated in the Yuletide fete.

Jack Oakie, who contributed the laughs in Clara Bow's success, "The Fleet's In," is spending his days, and nights, too, taking screen and voice tests for the leading role in Paramount's picturization of "Burlesque." James Barton was originally named for the part, but is now definitely in the discard. At the Paramount studio they think Oakie a good bet.

Tom Mix Picks Leading Woman

TOM MIX, who is brushing up on his Spanish by talking Mexicano to Lupe Velez, says that Kathryn McGuire will be the leading woman in his next picture. The title of it is "The Dude Ranch," which, in case you don't know, is a ranch where the city slickers pay out good money to pretend they are wild and woolly Westerners.

For once the conversation among picture people is not confined to the movies. The triumphs of West Coast teams over Army, Notre Dame and N. Y. U. has made all Hollywood hilarious with joy. Stars, directors and producers are all football enthusiasts, and talk with the knowledge of experts about the various elevens, players and coaches.

As prophesied, Lily Damita sighed for the role of the actress in Metro's "Bridge of San Louis Rey." She was borrowed from the Samuel Goldwyn outfit for the part. Before coming here to play opposite Ronald Colman in "The Rescue," Lily starred in six European films.

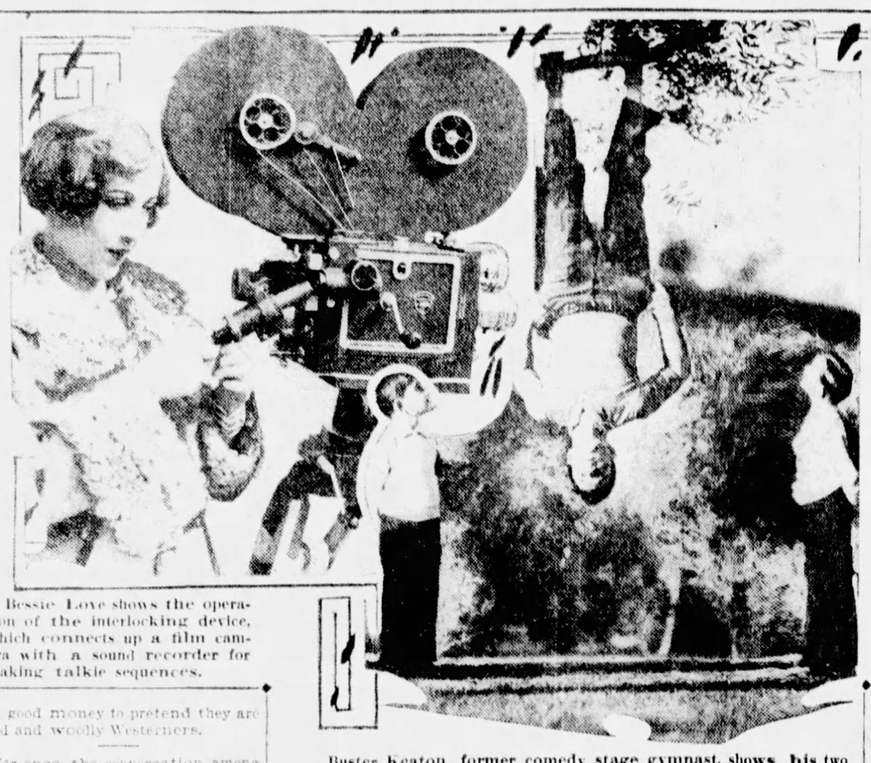
Wedding Bells For Alice Mills

DECEMBER 15 has been set as the wedding day of Alice Mills and William Davey, wealthy realtor. Alice will be remembered as a Paramount leading woman. She abandoned her career at the wish of her fiance. The honeymoon will be a trip around the world.

"Bubbles" Steiffel, bride of Reginald Denny, isn't so fortunate regarding her honeymoon. Hard-hearted officials at Universal have decided that business comes before pleasure, and Reggy must complete his present picture and one more before he and "Bubbles" may be free to set sail on their yacht, Barbarine. They will cruise among the South Sea islands.

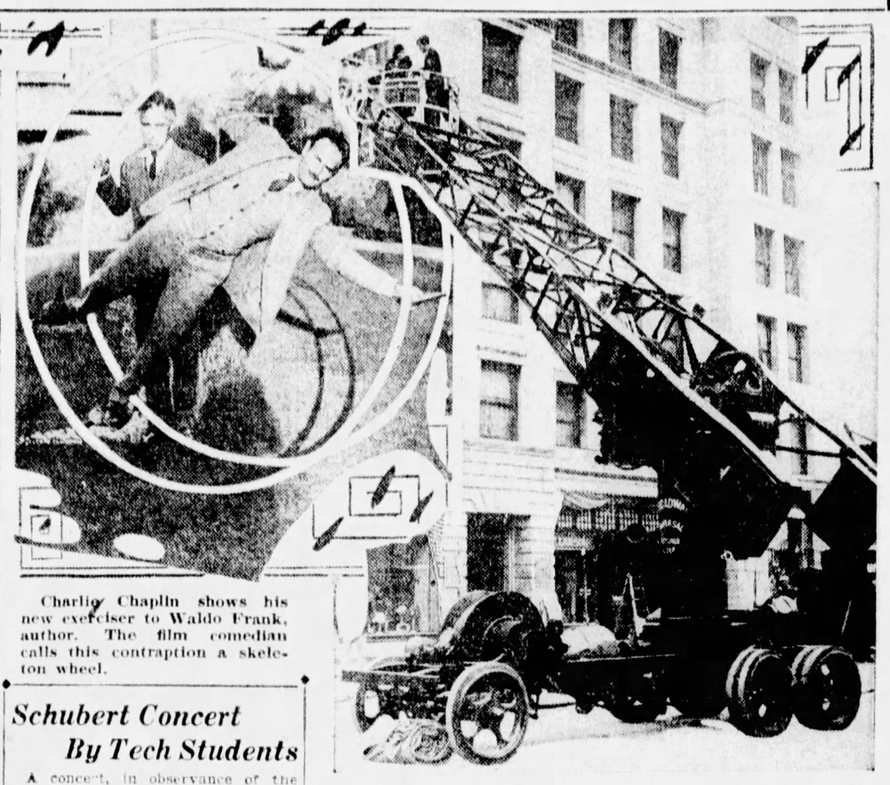
Whether or not Florence Vidor, now Mrs. Jascha Heifetz, remains in the movies, she at least will remain a resident of California. Their colonial house in Beverly has undergone some $20,000 worth of alterations and will be ready for occupancy by the time Jascha and his violin return from their European tour late this month.

SOME NOVELTIES :-: OF HOLLYWOOD :-: ARE ILLUSTRATED



Bessie Love shows the operation of the interlocking device, which connects up a film camera with a sound recorder for making talkie sequences.

Buster Keaton, former comedy stage gymnast, shows his two sons how he used to do things like this for a living, knocking them dead in vaudeville before he became a screen celebrity.



Charlie Chaplin shows his new exerciser to Waldo Frank, author. The film comedian calls this contraption a skeleton wheel.

This mechanical derrick is not for firemen but for the making of movies—the newest thing in Hollywood. It is for the cameraman and director for use in shooting big scenes and is adjustable to various heights and compass positions.

MIRTH, MUSIC, DANCE IN BILLS

Tomorrow morning seats will go on sale for the one-week engagement in the Pitt of George Jessel, in a comedy, "The War Song," in which he has achieved much success. Matinees will be Thursday and Saturday. The engagement is for only one week.

The operetta, "My Maryland," will play a return engagement in the Alvin next week, with matinees Wednesday and Saturday. This is said to be the farewell appearance in this city. The company is announced as one of the largest ever sent out of New York, where it has played for nearly one year, and later duplicating its success in Philadelphia and all the larger cities of the country.

The engagement of "Dracula" has been canceled for the week of December 10 in the Nixon through holding the play in Philadelphia. La Argentina, Spanish dancer, under the direction of May Beegle, will appear in the Nixon Tuesday night, December 11.

Monday, December 10, seats will go on sale in the box office of the Nixon for David Belasco's comedy production, "The Bachelor Father," which comes to the Nixon Monday evening, December 17.

Coolidges to Spend Christmas in Capital

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5.—(INS.)—President Coolidge and Mrs. Coolidge will "make merry" over Christmas in the White House instead of at one of the many places to which they have been invited.

During their residence in the executive mansion the President and Mrs. Coolidge have grown to take great pleasure in the simple ceremonies there, notably the gathering of children of Washington and the singing of carols, and much prefer this to going elsewhere, particularly when this is to be their last Christmas in the official residence.

John D., Jr., Gives $100,000 for Temple

NEW YORK, Dec. 4.—(AP.)—A gift of $100,000 from John D. Rockefeller, Jr., bringing his total contribution to $350,000, was announced today by Gen. Samuel McRoberts, chairman of the committee to raise $1,500,000 to complete financing of the $3,500,000 Broadway Temple. Mr. Rockefeller's gift is conditional upon raising of the remainder of the sum. Broadway Temple is to be a 36-story structure including a church, with recreational facilities, and apartments, hotel rooms and stores.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

PINK JADE

By LAURA REID MONTGOMERY.

THE pink jade idol grinned down at Ida with its eternal smile of derision. The young girl stared back from the doorway and then, with a furious yet deliberate gait moved across the shabby rug and smote the plump pink cheek sharply.

"Goodness, Ida, you haven't gone mad or anything, have you?" queried her brother, watching the odd scene with amused eyes.

"I haven't gone mad. I AM mad," she flared, dropping down amongst the cushions and bursting into grieved sobs. "I'm sick and tired of that old idol. I can never go anywhere because of its ridiculous value. Emerald eyes, indeed, I'd like to punch them both out."

"Relate, if you wish, but make it snappy. I've got to run in just two minutes," he said with the maddening air of kindness assumed by the big and married brother. "Ann won't stand for my being late."

"Ever since Aunt Elizabeth died I've been burdened with that," a slim and derisive finger indicated the pink smiler. "it's been six months. When I've had it a year her will is to be probated and we'll know who gets her estate. Meantime, this idol is mine—to do with as I choose."

"Ancient history, sis. Got anything new to divulge?"

The wet blue eyes regarded a vacant finger. "Only that Jim is so mad at me he—he accepted my ring back."

"More ninny you for giving him a chance. Girls get the most in marriage. When a fellow has spent his savings on a ring he hardly likes to back out but—if his jewel is offered—why, Ida, I thought you had a thought or two under that growing thatch of curls."

"His mother got up a week-end party all in a split second and insisted that I go down to the winter camp with them. She had just one seat left in the big car. I couldn't go and leave this old white elephant here alone in the fold-up, the top floor was robbed last week, you know. I've missed half a dozen house parties since I got the bit of jade because Ella is always away at the same time I get a chance to go anywhere."

"Most folks would think that kind of a flat-sharer ideal. Couldn't you have wrapped up the idol and taken it along? It always arouses a storm of admiring comments and I can see that it's frightfully valuable."

"There wasn't time to come home, and, even if they'd brought me, I've nothing to put it in, safely, except that old leather hat box that it came in. Uncle Jack's top hat used to occupy it. Fancy running down to that gay crowd carrying that antiquated old leather box. The idol has to have a lot of wrappings about it to keep it from getting marred or nicked."

"Nicked you out of a good time, I'd say. I'd get rid of it. You can't risk quarreling with your sweetie and you can't stay at home constantly to guard it."

"But don't you see, it's such an unusual possession? Marks one as belonging to a wealthy and cultured family. No one comes in without exclaiming about it and I've an idea that my care of it may affect the inheritance. Something in the lawyer's manner more than anything he said gave me the inkling."

"Poor job waiting to step into a dead woman's shoes and it's sheer snobbery to hang on to an antique for the sake of impressing folks. Silly, anyway, when we Blakes have so little. I'm always just a jump ahead of the rent collector and I have to pay the dollar fine often because my checking account is under the required balance of some hundreds of dollars. If you like the idol, keep it, of course. Otherwise, I'd give it to the janitor. An antique lover would leap at it. Why not sell it?"

"I hate it. I detest green eyes, emerald or otherwise, and that pink smile makes me tired. And Jim thinks I disregarded his mother's wishes and offended her on purpose." More tears glittered on the saucy nose. "The girls would think I needed money or something if I sold him. I can get a lot for him; Sam Belton made an offer."

"Well, you DO need money if you're to buy a trousseau, don't you? Why pretend? I'm sorry I can't make my cheque out for more than the hundred I promised, but it's all I can do, sis. So long."

Ida sat alone recalling the visits she'd foregone in order to guard that pink jade. Too bulky to take away on jaunts—too big to hide in the tiny apartment. Her little tin box in the safety deposit vault wouldn't hold more than his head and that was too thick for the depth—a box of adequate size would be quite out of the question because of the expense.

Finally, she did what she'd never done before; called Jim up.

She turned away from the telephone with a wild look in her eyes. Jim had been hatefully stiff and polite.

"I'm just as sorry as you are that you couldn't accept mother's invitation. You know I plan to join her there tomorrow. Doubtless, though, you've pleasanter plans."

And, while she was still hunting for suitable phrases to explain the idol and its probable effect upon the estate, he wished her a happy week-end and said goodby.

"That settles it. I'm not going to lose Jim for any old pink jade idol. Not even if that inheritance is forfeited because I got rid of it. Love is worth more than pink jade."

While thinking aloud, Ida was tossing on her hat and coat and, with a rather ungentle movement, wrapped the idol and thrust it into the hat box. Sam Belton would be in his antique shop now.

With the goodly sum from the sale in her purse she wrote a note to Jim and explained that she'd given up being guard for an idol and sent this off special delivery. Poor Ida had forgotten pride because—she placed Jim first—he was her world.

Jim replied in person and came in his roadster. "We'll just spin out there and surprise the gang at the camp," was his greeting. "do you know, Ida, I had an odd feeling about that idol—sort of as though you were afraid of him. I'm mighty glad he's disposed of."

"I have, most likely, lost my chance at the estate."

"You've got me, though," was his confident answer.

* * *

When the year was up the lawyer listened to Ida's story of the costly jade. Then he gave her a letter.

"I never had backbone enough to get rid of the jade. It lent such a different atmosphere to my study, but, Ida, it was a constant care, and—oh, well, the fact remains that I almost feared to sell it. Why, I don't know. If you have sold it you get what I have to leave."

The girl dropped the letter that her aunt had left her and stared at the old lawyer, but she didn't see him. Instead she seemed to see that inscrutable pink jade smile that had both baffled and annoyed her.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Diet Important in Digestive Troubles

A GREAT many persons write me about indigestion. They want to know what diet should be followed by persons who have dyspepsia. The most distressing cases are those in which there is gas formation in the stomach. This produces the distress.

DR. COPELAND

Proper diet is the essential thing. It is necessary—if there is to be relief of such digestive disturbances. Little can be done for those who are unwilling to make the personal sacrifices involved in the correction of the diet.

We are all creatures of habit. Many of our habits are good and some of them are bad. Whether a habit is a good habit or a bad habit it is difficult to change it. If ill health is the consequence of a bad habit, he is a very unwise man who neglects to reform.

When it comes to food and eating, everybody is the creature of habit. In early childhood we learn to like certain foods and dislike others. Indigestion may be due to eating too much of the foods we like. Strange as it may seem, eating too little may cause it. It may be due to denying the system the good effects of certain foods which are essential to the well being of the body.

Gas formation, too, is the effect of over-eating or of an improper method of eating. It may be due to eating the wrong kind of food.

Of course, I would be a very unscientific doctor if I contended for a moment that all cases of indigestion are of necessity the result of wrong eating. The truth is, indigestion may be a symptom merely. It may be a sign of chronic heart disease or chronic kidney disease. It may be associated with gall-stones or a chronic inflammation of the appendix.

In every case of obstinate intestinal discomfort and, likewise, in all cases where there is a gas formation in the stomach or intestines the family physician should be visited. He will make a careful examination. It is particularly important that this should be done if there has been loss of weight, continual pain or occasional vomiting. Your doctor will probably advise that an X-ray picture be taken.

In a simple case where the trouble is plainly due to bad eating, there are some foods which should be omitted. Eggs are particularly bad in such a case. I am a great believer in milk as a human food, but in cases of this sort it may be necessary to omit milk from the dietary.

Avoid chowders and rich soups, hash, stews with rich gravies, fried foods, pickled, corned or cured meats, salted, preserved or smoked fish, pastry, nuts and ice water.

If you find that one particular food causes distress, common sense tells you to avoid it. Common sense in eating, as a matter of fact, is the best remedy.

Answers to Health Queries

S. T. Q.—What do you advise for rheumatism in the knees and elbows?

A.—You are probably troubled with arthritis. The teeth, tonsils, sinuses, glands, intestines and kidneys are all possible points of infection and a thorough examination would be advisable in order to determine the source of the trouble.

* * *

E. M. Q.—What do you advise for catarrh?

A.—Special treatment is necessary in order to cure. A nose and throat spray is usually beneficial.

Tomorrow's Horoscope

Thursday, December 6

THE sidereal forces for this day are not operating with vigorous influence. In a mild sort of way they shed a benign ray on employment and assist to preferment or recognition from superiors. The Mercury sextile to Luna aids the acceleration of business, particularly favoring those things pertaining to letters, writings and publishing or promotion. The mind may turn to a studious and serious outlook. It might be advisable to postpone new ventures.

Those whose birthday it is may look for a fairly successful year, with employment flourishing, assisting to honors or recognition from those in authority. Business should also make fair progress especially in literary lines, publishing or promotion. But new ventures are not so well favored. The mind may be studious and disinclined to worldly success.

A child born on this day may have a mind toward the profound and serious, nevertheless it may have keen literary or professional talents and likewise be equipped for success in employment.

Astrology interested us, for it tied man to the system. Instead of being an isolated beggar, the furthest star felt for him and he felt the star.—Emerson.

The Pearl -:- -:- By Madge Geyer

DID you ever heard the story of how the first pearl came into existence? Once upon a time, long, long ago, when mermaids were happily living in the palaces under the sea, they led the very merriest of lives. They played and flirted and combed their golden locks all day through and had never a care in the world.

But one day one of the little mermaids felt so blue she didn't know what was the matter. She swam around and around, finding no pleasure with her companions and wondered what was the matter. Going up to the surface of her ocean home, she found black waves, and heard thunder and saw lightning and thinking that her home was about to be destroyed, she went down, down to the bottom of the sea and started to cry. She was sitting on a coral branch and right at her feet there was an oyster. He opened his shell and asked her what was the matter. One of her tears fell inside his shell and it stayed there and grew and grew, until one day when he opened his shell again there was a beautiful pearl. And that's how pearls came into existence!

Meditations of a Wife

By HELEN ROWLAND

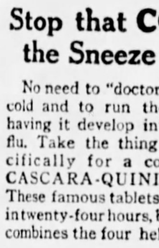
When Love Dies of Boredom

THERE are three kinds of marriages, as W. L. George once said—happy marriages, unhappy marriages, and those that are merely uncomfortable.

* * *

The marriage problem would be far simpler, if the world were made of saints and sinners, instead of just half-sinners. It is easy to decide what to do with a wife or a husband who is guilty of some big besetting sin such as wife beating, husband shooting, hard drinking or unfaithfulness.

* * *



HELEN ROWLAND

But what can you do with the half-sinner, who just succeeds in making life one long, drab, uncomfortable bore—like the dull ache in a grumbling tooth?

* * *

You know the ones I mean. The man who acts as though home were a deaf and dumb asylum, and never opens his mouth except to ask when dinner will be ready or to say "Pass the muffins."

* * *

The woman who appoints herself an investigating committee of one, digs out her husband's most sacred secrets, probes his tenderest feelings and never permits him a private thought or opinion. The human questionnaire.

* * *

The gentleman detective, who snoops in the icebox, keeps tab on the number of eggs the cook uses, and wants to know what became of last night's left-over potatoes.

* * *

The lady sleuth, who reads her husband's letters, sniffs his breath and regards a pink peppermint lozenger in his pocket as an evidence of crime.

* * *

The human fire-alarm, who keeps his wife on the jump from the moment the alarm-clock goes off until the last radio goes to sleep.

* * *

The feminine mollusc, who lies around like a sacred crocodile waiting to be fed, clothed, decorated and amused and calmly lets George do all the heavy pulling.

* * *

The sartorial judge, who insists on selecting his wife's hats, censoring her evening gowns and limiting her lip-rouge.

* * *

The prowler, who patters around the house all night; the sleepy-head, who yawns through all her evenings; the bathroom hog, the "I-told-you-so" wife; the talking machine; the reformer and the critic!

* * *

These are the half-sinners who turn marriage from a life-partnership into a life-sentence! Most marital love does not die suddenly. It is just slowly bored to death!

LOVE'S AWAKENING -:- A CONTINUATION OF LOVE'S EMBERS

By ADELE GARRISON

Philip Veritzen and Miss Lincoln Again Appear

AS Katie announced that "Meester Veritzen mit hees boy and dot Mees Lincoln, dey downstairs," I looked across at my father in quick dismay. I had promised Mother Graham that I would stay with Junior until Katherine returned, an assurance upon which my captious old mother-in-law, laden with an overweening sense of her responsibilities, had insisted. And my father's words of warning, concerning the personal interest of my employer in me, seemed still to be floating in the air, so recently had they been uttered.

"I don't see how I can go down," I said in bewildered fashion. "Katherine hasn't come back, and—"

"That's where you're wrong." The little nurse's cheery voice sounded from the hall, and a second later she came out on the veranda.

"There! you see your problem is solved," my father said, and his significant look at me told me that he saw the necessity of my receiving Mr. Veritzen.

I turned to Katie whose bright eyes were going from my father's face to mine with the lively curiosity which is her greatest fault.

"Tell them I'll be right down," I directed. "Where have you put them?"

"I try hat dem go by living room," she said with a touch of exasperation in her tone. "But dey tink demselves so smart, und dey say, 'Eet so nice out on veranda ve stay out here.' Und I always 'fraid I tip ofer tea wagon getting eet down dot step."

"We don't serve any tea today, Katie," I assured her. "Mr. Veritzen, no doubt, has only called to inquire about Junior, as all our other friends have. And the others are here every day, as you know."

"You bet your boots I know," my little maid declared. "Dey all time underfoot. But I got to beat eet, or dey tink you no vant see dem."

"She's uncanny in her timing," Katherine laughed as Katie hurried away. "She knows exactly when to 'beat it' in order to avoid a call down."

"She's incorrigible, I know," I sighed, "but—"

"Put that last word in capitals, also italics," Katherine admonished, "and visualize it whenever you're unusually exasperated at your handmaiden. For you'll never find another so willing, so devoted and so really capable—not in this modern age."

"I know that," I agreed. "And now, will you excuse me. I must change this house dress for something a bit more formal."

"Don't take too long," Katherine admonished. "I saw the procession as it entered the house, and it was a well-laden one. I think your esteemed boss must have bought out a fruit store, also a toy shop. No doubt he'll ask to see the boy, and if Junior's awake there will be no objection. But if he's asleep, the doors are barred to Lindbergh and the Prince of Wales."

"Mother!" The call came from Junior's room, and Katherine put her fingers to her lips.

"He hasn't heard you," she whispered. "He calls you always the first thing when he awakens. Hurry down." Then aloud she called cheerily:

"Mother will be back in a little while. She has gone to see some callers. But here's your grandfather."

"Oh! goody! Now I'll have another story," my small son's voice caroled, and I was ashamed of the tiny pang which I felt at his easy acceptance of my father as a substitute for me. I told myself scathingly as I hurried noiselessly to my room that I was a perfect instance of the person who wishes to eat and save the cake at the same time.

I wasted very little time in dressing, and a queer quixotic little feeling made me select the least becoming afternoon dress in my wardrobe, and pay scant attention to my coiffure. For my father's words of caution were ringing disturbingly in my ears as I went downstairs to greet my guests.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Notes of Excuse

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN: Will you please tell me the proper way to write a note explaining a child's absence from school? Is there anything wrong with the following note:

Dear Miss Jones:

Please excuse Mary for being absent yesterday as she was ill.

Mrs. Mary Johnson.
A MOTHER.

THE main part of the note that you wrote in your letter is quite good, although it would, I think, be better if you used two sentences instead of one. Then, too, it would be better to use "My" before the "dear" in the salutation, although that is not a very important distinction. The rule is that "My dear Miss Jones" is more formal than "Dear Miss Jones."

Then, too, since you have a salutation, you must have a complimentary close. For such a note "Very sincerely yours" is a perfect complimentary close.

But the detail of the letter to which I want to call your very careful attention is the form of the signature, which is absolutely wrong. We should never write a title—MRS., MISS or MR.—before our signature, no matter what kind of letter we are writing, unless we use parenthesis around it. This is the most important detail of letter-writing that a married woman should know. I shall indicate the form in the signature of my suggested note:

My dear Miss Jones:

I am sorry that Mary was not able to come to school yesterday, Wednesday. She was ill.

Yours very sincerely,
Mary Smith Jonson.
(Mrs. Henry Jonson.)

This, by the way, is the correct form of a married woman's signature for all business letters or letters such as the one for the absence-excuse. In other words, letters to anyone who needs to be informed of the signer's married name. Mary Smith Jonson is the form made by combining the first and last names of the maiden with the last name of the married name.

Hygiene, Not Etiquette

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

1. Is it proper to wipe with your napkin your knife, fork and spoon in a restaurant, especially in one that isn't exceptionally clean?

2. Where should a napkin be placed after having finished a meal?

3. Do you use a spoon or fork when eating applesauce? S. G.

THIS would contribute more to hygiene than to etiquette, I think.

2. When rising, place the napkin unfolded, on the table, to the left of the plate.

3. A fork is best, if it is of a thick consistency. If it is a thin sauce use a spoon.

S.S.S. and Rheumatism Simply don't get along together

ARE you one of those unfortunates who suffer with pains in your muscles and joints, commonly called rheumatism, making you miserable, less efficient, interfering with your working hours, ruining your sleep?

You may have tried many things without relief. Why not try S.S.S.?

S.S.S. is extracted from the fresh roots of medicinal plants and herbs and gives to Nature what she needs in building you up so that your system throws off the cause.

For more than 100 years S.S.S. has been giving relief in thousands of cases, as testified to in unsolicited letters of gratitude.

All drug stores sell S.S.S. in two sizes. Get the larger size. It is more economical.

"After suffering several years, six bottles of S.S.S. completely relieved me of rheumatism. It also cleared up a skin eruption and gave me a good appetite. I think S.S.S. is a wonderful medicine."

BUGS BAER Says

WITH the football season now over, America resumes its spot in peace and progress.

The students are taking their fractured skulls back into the classrooms.

ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER

The thought behind our collegiate game is that anything you do to a sophomore's head is bound to be an improvement.

The idea of the game is to reduce an eleven to three or four

The boys slugged each other all over the lot on the theory that a touchdown is the shortest distance between two eyes.

In the big co-ed colleges all the girls are training to be nurses and all the boys are studying to be patients.

But the real crash arrived when the West slipped East.

New York hadn't seen real, manly football until the Oregon Aggies plastered New York University.

They don't give out varsity letters in the west.

They give out lumps.

After seeing the Oregon Aggies batter the New Yorkers to a white blister we realized that the covered wagon was an ambulance.

Then along comes Stanford to shake the crumbs out of the Army tablecloth.

The Notre Dame team ran through the Southern California adding machine and the total was a yard of zeroes.

There is some excuse for Notre Dame.

That college hasn't been any good since Lon Chaney graduated.

We thought Army would do fairly well with Stanford.

The Army is the backbone of nation.

But the Stanford team consists of eleven chiropractics

It slapped the Army all over the terrace. Threw forward passes around like pills in a free clinic and made Cagle look as silly as a chef trying to bake a cake of ice.

The Army team committed a blunder by not going into a permanent huddle.

The three organizations took action as the result of a street car collision November 20, in which 50 persons were injured.

PATRICIA PITT'S SPRIGHTLY COMMENT ON PITTSBURGH'S SOCIETY HAPPENINGS

Great Variety of Social Events Planned for Pre-Holiday Season

THOSE who may have wearied of the sameness in social events during the last few weeks will be glad to hear of the great variety of activities planned for the social world during the pre-holiday season.

For the younger set (and by younger set this time I mean rather paradoxically the little older set rather than the debutante and school group) there are several events planned which are a little different. The executive board of the Junior League will give a tea on Thursday, December 13, at 4 o'clock, in the club rooms in the Woman's Exchange Building for the provisional members and new members who have transferred from other cities.

Augusta Leovy is president of the Junior League this year; Priscilla Hall and Helen Leovy are vice presidents; Mrs. Sidney Hammond, recording secretary; Evelyn Evans, corresponding secretary; Mrs. John F. Walton, Jr., treasurer; Miss Anna K. Childs, assistant treasurer; Mrs. Harry Darlington, Mrs. Dorwin J. Donnelly and Mrs. Charles L. Snowdon, Jr., directors.

Mrs. James M. Schoonmaker, Jr., is chairman of the clearing house committee; Forsyth Patterson, chairman of the training course; Marjorie Kimball, recreation.

Mrs. Eleanor Scott Walker, assisted by Mary Rhodes, is editor of the Junior League Magazine.

Another event planned by the Junior League for this month is an exhibition of painting and sculpture, the work of members, to be held December 10 and 11 in the league room.

ONE of the most popular of the Sewickley buds is Virginia Willock, daughter of the Frank Scott Willocks. Mrs. Maitland Alexander will give a luncheon for her, I've just learned, on December 22 in the Allegheny Country Club. Dancing will follow the luncheon.

* * *

A FORMER Pittsburgh girl will be honor guest at a social event in the East this week. You recall Pauline Page, daughter of the George Stevens Pages, I'm sure, and her marriage last September to Lesslie Stockton Howell, son of the C. Harry Stockton Howells of Haverford.

Mrs. Howell will give a tea Saturday afternoon in her home for her daughter-in-law.

MUSICALES in the home of Mrs. Taylor Allderdice have become almost a tradition if several seasons can make a tradition. For some time at Wednesday morning musicales in her home folks have had an opportunity to hear musically talented Pittsburghers who are not professionals.

Tomorrow afternoon she will be hostess at a musicale in honor of Mrs. Oscar Bradley, wife of the director of the orchestra playing for "Rosalie" at the Nixon this week.

Mrs. J. J. McAdoo, of Alder street, contralto, will sing several groups, among them some of her own composition; Cizella Fallos, pianist, her brother, who is known as Sonny Fallos, boy violinist, and Henry Harris, pianist, will present the remainder of the program.

ANOTHER bud of last season is now betrothed. You may have guessed I'm referring to Mary Louise Johnson, daughter of Mrs. Johnson and the late William Terrell Johnson. Her mother announces the engagement of her popular daughter to Raymond Ford Moreland, son of the W. C. Morelands, of Coraopolis Heights.

THE marriage of Miss Virginia Newman Phillips, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank R. Phillips, of Orchard drive, Mt. Lebanon, and Charles Collingwood Zimmerman, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Zimmerman, of Tulsa, Okla., and Pittsburgh, was solemnized last night at 6:30 o'clock in the Phillips home by the Rev. Dr. W. L. McEwan, pastor of the Third Presbyterian Church.

The ceremony was performed on the wedding anniversary of the bride's parents, and she wore her mother's wedding gown of white tapeta and tulle, with her grandmother's veil of tulle. She carried a shower of white roses and lilies of the valley. Miss Martha Estelle Phillips, as her sister's maid of honor, appeared in yellow chiffon and carried bronze chrysanthemums, while another sister, Miss Bertha Jane Phillips, as bridesmaid, wore Nile green chiffon, with a bouquet of yellow chrysanthemums. DeVere Carter, of Dallas, Tex., was best man, and William Foraker, of this city, was usher. Only the immediate families and a few friends were in attendance. Mr. and Mrs. Zimmerman have left by motor for Wichita Falls, Tex., where they will make their home.

WHAT'S ON THE AIR

By DARRELL V. MARTIN,
Radio Editor.

THERE is "something in the air" which seems to forebode a fiery session of the Federal Radio Commission this Friday when WCAE witnesses make their appeal for an improvement in wavelength assignment. No detail is being overlooked by counsel for the local station and it appears certain there will be a lobby full of witnesses, ranging from congressmen to radiotricians.

Managers of other Pittsburgh stations are reticent as to the outcome, but where any feeling is shown it is favorable to WCAE. One station manager said last night that he expected the Commission to clear up the wave channel where WCAE is now located. If this is done it will eliminate the heterodyning noises that have interfered with their programs, he said.

Listeners have rested their case with thousands of letters sent the Sun-Telegraph and WCAE.

COMING FEATURES

Walter Chambers, aviation editor of the Sun-Telegraph, will speak during the boys' aviation period Thursday night at 5:30 o'clock over WCAE. Mr. Chambers has taken part in the two balloon races held here.

A three hour midnight program will be given Friday over KDKA to boost the sale of Christmas seals. Mary Nash and a host of theatrical stars will take part.

How chance averted a real tragedy will be one of the subjects tonight. The claret girl will be up against a knotty problem. Among the dramas that catch her eye will be one in which she instinctively would like to interfere, but her role must be sustained. She sees a rather well-known man about town, of none too good reputation, with a charming young girl who apparently knows nothing of the trap that is being laid for her, and she is powerless to interfere. Fate, however, takes a hand in the situation and prevents what might otherwise have been a tragedy.

Alleged Robber Faces Forgery Charge

Soap His Material, Lad With Knife Becomes "Sculptor"

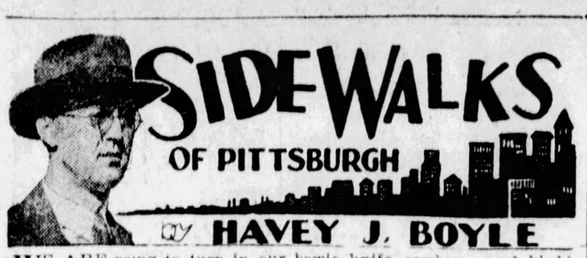
MORRY MAZZIOLI MEETS A CAKE OF SOAP

Morry Mazzioli, 13, 233 Bigham street, South Hills High School lad, has found in himself an aptitude for sculpture. He uses soap.

MORRY, WITH ONLY A KNIFE, COMPLETES A MODEL

And so Morry these days spends his time after school hours carving animals from bars of soap. A bar costs a dime, an animal model brings 35c.

SIDEWALKS OF PITTSBURGH



BY HAVEY J. BOYLE

WE ARE going to turn in our bowie knife, sombrero and khaki suit and as for that pledge that all Boy Scouts take: "I'll do one good deed a day," well, that is going to be sent back to our scoutmaster, too.

* * *

The South Side police right now are looking for a tall man, with spectacles, and a black hat—the police description probably going on to say that the fugitive looks as if he might be a collector for some fake missionary society. All this is the result of that Boy Scout pledge.

* * *

HERE is what happened and after we've told it we'll give ourself up and let the law takes its course. It's no fun being a hunted man and as we sign the confession we feel much relieved.

* * *

At South Sixteenth and Carson streets a man, about to board a street car, slipped and bumped his koko against the car-step. He rolled over and blood gushed as sperm oil gushes from a whale. The conductor and another passenger dashed to the rescue and put the man on his feet. A third character, who shall be known as ole Joe Gumm, against his sharper instincts offered help.

* * *

THE conductor suggested: "We'd better send him to the hospital." As a veteran reporter ole Joe Gumm thought at once of the police patrol, in which the stricken man could be conveyed to the hospital. Accordingly, ole Joe Gumm went to the nearest telephone and with as much authority as he could put into his voice said to the central: "Emergency—Police—Number Seven Station." The sergeant answered. "Send the wagon to Eighteenth and Carson," said Mr. Gumm, "a man is injured." "Righto," said the sergeant, or maybe it was "Toodle-oo."

* * *

Mr. Gumm, feeling that he had done something fine and intelligent then walked away from the 'phone to go back to the point of the accident. Imagine Mr. Gumm's embarrassment when he discovered that the street car had gone on its way and that the victim of the accident was negotiating South Eighteenth street in a manner that indicated his decks were awash in a high sea. In the meantime, Mr. Gumm thought of the patrol wagon he had ordered.

* * *

MR. GUMM, hurrying after the man ahead who was bobbing along on the bounding main. "See here," said Mr. Gumm, "you can't get better so soon. I've already sent for the patrol wagon. In all fairness you should wait here to be taken to the hospital."

* * *

"That's all right, my friend," said the accident victim, "but I don't want to go to a hospital. I don't like hospitals. They're expensive and besides one of those young internes will be wanting to look at my tongue and getting me to say: 'Ah,' and 'oh,' and such things. I'm going home."

* * *

IF MR. GUMM, still thinking of the clanging patrol, had had a blunt instrument with him he would have given the stranger another tap on the koko to make the story stand up, but in the absence of a good blunt instrument the only thing to do was to let the stranger proceed on his way.

* * *

Some moments later the patrol arrived. Mr. Gumm discreetly stood in the background. "Where's the accident victim?" asked the wagonman. No one in the small crowd answered. Mr. Gumm, a little miserable in his silence, thought he heard a cock crow thrice.

* * *

AND with a few harsh words the patrol wagon started back to the station house. So anyone wanting a good bowie knife and a bandanna handkerchief can get same by applying to Boy Scout Troop No. 4,786.

SOAP SCULPTOR TURNS ART TO PROFIT

Morry Mazzioli, 13, uses soap as material for sculpture. Specifically he uses it to express his fondness for animals, and now, with Christmas coming on, he has commercialized his art.

One day last spring he picked up a piece of wood and began whittling it. Unconsciously, he turned out a fairly good likeness of an elephant. Then he tried soap and ran the gamut of domestic and favorite wild animals. Friends began to admire. He won a prize when he was a sophomore in South Hills High School. And now he sells his work. He figures this way:

One dime for a bar of soap. An hour after school plus ma's paring knife. A customer. Twenty-five cents profit. His sale price is 35 cents and he has saved up $3 to buy himself a real sculptor's outfit. And his market is developing.

For he has waved aside with careless abandon the time-worn cry that the true artist is not a good business man. Ask Ray Guthridge, who lives next door to Maurice's home at 233 Bigham street, Mt. Washington. Ray is one of Morry's business agents, and gets a commission for every order he places. And there are others.

But what the women customers of the young sculptor especially like is—when he delivers the animal he always brings them the shavings, too. They get a real dime's worth.

And women — to judge from Morry's success, know a good bargain when they see one.

HEALING TOPIC AT SERVICE IN GLORY BARN

A sermon on "Christ the Healer," was delivered last night by the Rev. F. F. Bosworth, evangelist, at the Glory Barn, Carson street. His sermon was an answer to the question: Did Christ redeem us from bodily disease when He effected our atonement by substitutionary death on the cross?

He said Satan brought sin, disease and death into the world and that as Christ's atonement was effected to overcome Satan it must of necessity overcome all the world of Satan of which disease and death was a part. At the close of the sermon, a healing service was held.

Yesterday at 2 p. m. Alvin Roper, pianist, gave a musical program, which was broadcast, and in the evening he again played a musical program before the service.

Bridge Damages Garage, Woman Paid $500

Because the construction of the Coraopolis-Neville Island Bridge makes it necessary to raise her garage, install a new floor and make other changes, Mrs. Helen Gordon was awarded $500 damages by the County Commissioners yesterday. Stuart as a result of an automobile crash in which a machine owned by Stuart was involved. KILBUCK ROAD CLAIMS PAID

The County Commissioners yesterday authorized the payment of $2,800 to the supervisors of Sewickley Heights Township, the amount being the county's share of the cost of construction of a highway from Magee road to Kilbuck road.

J. M. Berkey, who stated that the construction of State Highway Route 115 near the Beaver County line, took 3 acres of his property and made it necessary for him to erect 3,100 feet of fence was awarded $800. A settlement of $200 for damages to the A. F. Nolte property on the same road was authorized by the County Commissioners. The sum of $500 was awarded for damages to the property of Wilson Lewis on the same road.

The County Commissioners also awarded $650 damages to the property of Joseph Reedy and brother on the Kittanning-Dorseyville road.

BRICK PAVING IN BRADDOCK VOTED

Talbot street, Braddock, will be paved with brick over a concrete base, the County Commissioners decided yesterday after hearing a committee headed by George H. House, president of Braddock Council, present a request for the use of such material.

House said that all of the members of Council and most of the property owners affected desired brick instead of the concrete called for in the original specifications of the Department of Public Works.

The hearing developed a discussion of the relative advantages of brick and concrete, Commissioner E. V. Babcock stating that while he favored the brick in this instance because the residents of the district wanted it, he objected to its use for long stretches of highway.

"It is not so good as concrete nor so cheap," he said.

Commissioner Joseph G. Armstrong said that he had inspected several old concrete roads recently and did not think as much of that material as he did at one time.

"I'm not interested in any material except the best for our roads," he added, "I don't own a share of stock in any brick company or any other paving material company and don't profit either directly or indirectly. But the borough officials and the people want brick on Talbot avenue and I'm in favor of giving it to them."

State Asks County To Construct Road

The construction of the Oakdale-Treveskyn road is very important, said James L. Stuart, Secretary of Highways, in a letter asking the County Commissioners their plans for the improvement of that highway. The letter was referred to Director of Public Works Norman F. Brown for a report.

Road Wrecks Porch, Asks $1,250 of County

Joseph Sigmund lost his front porch and asked the county for damages totaling $1,250. The amount was granted yesterday.

PASSING BAD CHECK ALSO CHARGED

Clifton Schopp, arrested as a robber gang suspect by Patrolmen George Schmotzer and John Elliott in Mt. Washington, was given a hearing yesterday before Magistrate John J. Sweeney in South Side Police Court on a suspicious person charge, and was turned over to Alderman John P. Kearcher, South Thirteenth street, where he will be given a hearing tomorrow night on two charges, one of passing a worthless check and the other for check forgery.

The first charge was preferred by Gust Seretakis, proprietor of a Shiloh street lunch room, who identified Schopp as the person for whom he cashed a worthless check for $17. The other charge was entered by the Iron and Glass Dollar Savings Bank of Birmingham, 1114 Carson street, an official of which identified Schopp as having cashed a $15 worthless check in the name of M. J. Lummick.

General anxiety has been occasioned for the safety of Alexander Storrie, a well known merchant of Crafton, who has been missing from his home for the last week.

Prior to his disappearance, Mr. Storrie had been confined to his home with illness for several days. When last seen he complained of a pain in his head and declared he was going for a walk. Crafton police have been appealed to in an effort to locate him.

ONE-MAN CARS CONDEMNED

The use of one-man cars was condemned in resolutions of the Kiwanis Club of Homestead, Homestead Local No. 288 and the Republican Club of Lincoln Place, presented to the commissioners yesterday.

The resolutions resulted from the accident at Eighth and Amity streets, Homestead, on November 20.

Settles Damage to Property for $150

The construction of the Steubenville Pike affected the property of John Zagota in such a way as to make it impossible for him to conduct the small dairy which is his sole means of livelihood, according to a report submitted to the County Commissioners yesterday. He had to purchase 100 feet of pipe to drain his yard and stables, in addition to losing some of his ground, and offered to settle for $150. He was awarded this amount.

Rush Excavation For Lutheran School

Rapid progress is being made in the excavation work for St. Mark's Lutheran School at Glenarm avenue and Brookline boulevard, Brookline. Ground for the structure was officially broken some weeks ago, but the actual work did not start until last week. Steam shovels now are active in excavating for the foundations and it is hoped that the basement walls may be completed before severe weather sets in.

KINDERGARTEN MAKES OWN FURNITURE!

YOUNG PUPILS AND THEIR HOME-MADE FURNITURE

"Make your own" is the motto in the community activities room, Soho School. Crates, picked up by boys, have been fashioned into a desk and magazine rack. Girls made the desk blotter, books and their covers. Miss Kathryn Brennan, training teacher, with her assistants, Mary Kilgallon and Ursula Mack, showed the boys how to use plane, hammer and saw and wield a paint brush. The girls are taught to sew, draw and paint. The 6 and 7-year-old artisans here are Harriet Catino, Violet Mahali, Edna Earl Mitchell, Anna Mae Erb, John Presken and Billy Kornikow.

Will Rogers Says

NEW YORK, N. Y., Dec. 5.

I like this part of Mr. Coolidge's message best: "Both parties in Nicaragua were pleased with the outcome of their election and have asked for the Marines against next time. But I did not commit myself."

Yes, I think I would let Hoover contract 'em for that one. The Marines will certainly be tickled to know they can get bookings four years ahead. They have always just had to pick up little wars from day to day. Now they can kinda look ahead and plan, and have a permanent address.

If they satisfied both parties after election, I believe the Democrats will sign 'em up right here at home, for the November, 1932, follies.

I will get deeper into the message tomorrow.

Yours, WILL ROGERS.

Ice-cold love letters

No matter how warm with sentiment are the letters in his bag, they give little aid and comfort to the mail-man. In biting winds, in zero snows, he must make his frosty rounds.

Because the mails must go through in all weathers, letter-carriers need to throw colds off quickly. To do that, millions of outdoor workers, and indoor workers as well, take GROVE'S BROMO QUININE at the very first warning signal—a sneeze, a headache, or a stopped-up feeling. SIMPLE HOME REMEDY FOR GRAY HAIR OR BALDNESS

Banishes Dandruff, Eczema, Etc.—Revives Youthful Luster and Color.

RESULTS AMAZING, FOLKS HERE SAY

"I bought a bottle for one of the children to stop the itching rash and dandruff for which it's wonderful, and using it on my own scalp I was amazed to notice my hair getting thicker, more even colored and every gray hair turned back again, like magic," enthusiastically declared a lady whose beautiful head of hair is a walking advertisement to the success of Lea's Hair Tonic.

"Lea's Hair Tonic has the faint odor of bay rum and contains sulphur, which, as everyone knows, is a natural part of human hair, but in addition it has seven ingredients a doctor labored years to work out in his search for something harmless, which one could use for years with unvarying change in the hair. He didn't want an old-time dye that brings such shocking shades, ever growing worse and darker. He sought a tonic to be rubbed into the scalp and not on the hair. You can dip hair in a basin of Lea's Hair Tonic with no change in color, but rub it into the hair roots nightly a few times and watch the hair gradually resume from root to tip its youthful color of blonde, red, brown or black, which ever it originally was, and who can give your hair a more becoming shade than the one nature gave you first?"

Applied at home with finger tips like any tonic, experts cannot detect its use. In about three applications dandruff vanishes and the scalp begins taking on a healthy tone—then the mirror whispers a little secret—you are NOT gray any more and your hair is thicker and you look years younger. Men swear by it. Prominent men and women constantly before the public wouldn't dream of staining their scalp with dye, but Lea's is different—thousands use it unbeknown, except to the family, and you may, too, for druggists have Lea's Hair Tonic, or send dollar bill to Lea Tonic Co., Riverwood, Md., for bottle and directions, return mail.

MUSIC

Mendelssohn Choir

Carnegie Music Hall

The Mendelssohn Choir gave the opening concert of its present season in Carnegie Music all last night. Unfortunately the house was not crowded, and we can assure the absentees that they missed one of the loveliest cantatas in modern music.

In commemoration of the death of Franz Schubert, Director Ernest Lunt chose to perform that composer's "Song of Miriam." It is a long choral veil woven about a very tuneful soprano solo, the latter nicely sung by Irene Garrison Cramblet. But it could not hold its own alongside Wolf-Ferrari's "New Life."

Perhaps Wolf-Ferrari was still under the spell of "Tristan" and all of Bayreuth when he wrote the cantata, but he assuredly proved that he could take another path, and while he reminisced on favorite intervals, could always write an individual idiom. The music has little in common with his operas. The vocal line for chorus and solo is extremely difficult; it is highly dramatic, naturally melodic, though it exacts much from the singers in its rhythms, in its demands on breath control, and musical feeling.

Dante's sonnets to Beatrice are the foundation of the text. Their declamation demands the tenderest expression, with ocasional outbursts of grief or exultation. The choir has never before sung so musically, nor, it seems to me, entered into the deeper feeling of a musical work so thoroughly as in this performance. In several of the intermezzi Earl Mitchell did interesting organ work, but should have asserted himself far more vigorously during the accompaniments for the choir. Our regrets for the absence of an orchestra could not have been so strong.

Frederic Baer sang the long baritone solo part with unusual distinction. His voice was extremely sympathetic, his declamation and splendid diction full of poetry. He is the most intelligent singer Mr. Lunt has engaged in a long while, and we shall welcome his return. Florence Boggs sang the soprano solo with clarity and simplicity. Mildred Fey was the piano accompanist.

Madge Is Unhappy When She Discovers Carroll Dudley Is Married

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Madge Sayer, young and beautiful, lives in a dingy New York apartment with her father, an unsuccessful inventor, who always plans for riches that never come. Madge seeks thrills and gaiety and longs for the intoxication of joyous living. At a party given by Frances Storrs, a friend, she meets Carroll Dudley, handsome artist, aviator and "man about town." Dudley lays siege to Madge, who is warned by Frances Storrs. She dines in his luxurious studio apartment. He takes her on a midnight airplane ride and following several days' rushing asks her to pose for him. Madge agrees on certain conditions. These he accepts, but after posing Dudley takes Madge in his arms and professes his love. She assures him of her own love and speaks of marriage which Dudley avoids. Over an accidentally "broken-in" wire Madge hears him called "a Prince of Cads."

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

WHILE his lips knew the wine of her mouth, joy suffused her. Gone were her doubts, and in their place was rosered ecstasy that Carroll—her Carroll—remained upon the pedestal where her love had placed him.

Dinner that night was a happy affair, and so did Madge slide into days which seemed to fly by. She spent her afternoon in the studio, posing for Carroll, and his sketch of her was almost completed.

One morning, when Madge arrived at the studio, Hardy informed her that Carroll had been called out, but would be back in a few moments.

Madge idled about the studio and had just made up her mind that she would go upstairs to prepare for her posing when she heard an altercation in the hall.

"I'm sorry, Madam," Madge heard Hardy say, "but my orders was—"

"I don't care a fig for your orders," came a woman's voice. "I'll enter my husband's studio whenever I want to."

And before the shock of those words had penetrated Madge's mind, a woman stood in the big room and looked disdainfully at her.

"I am Mrs. Carroll Dudley," she announced. "And who are you?"

CHAPTER VII.

FOR the first moment after the the studio visitor declared herself Carroll's wife, Madge was too stunned to feel pain.

Then, as though not believing she heard aright, she asked:

"Are you Carroll Dudley's wife?" She caught the back of a chair to steady herself.

"Certainly I am his wife—worse luck!" retorted the other woman, a faded blonde of 30, or perhaps 35.

Madge sat down in sheer weakness. Carroll, her Carroll—the man she had selected above all others—had lied! Her world lay suddenly in ruins.

The next words of the blonde cut across her thoughts like the slash of a whip.

And I suppose you're Carroll's model," she said, "and his mistress, too, for all I know."

"Oh!" Madge cried. "Oh—oh, how dare you!"

And she fled from the studio—from that awful woman—through street crowds—into her own room, where she threw herself on the couch. Then at last she was weeping, weeping . . . Weeping for her man, for the illusions she had built up about him.

At last she felt she could not bear her grief any longer. It was not right that anyone should suffer so much alone.

Later Dudley rang the doorbell.

It was only fair to see him, Madge reflected as she dabbed feverishly with her powder puff. Even a criminal was allowed a chance to explain.

She was trembling as she entered the living room. Carroll was alone. And as she saw Dudley's amazing good looks and his blazing blue eyes that seemed to be looking into her very soul, Madge suddenly wanted to punish him, hurt him, to avenge her own pain. She wanted to scratch and maul that beloved face. But she forced an outward calm as she sat down and she asked waspishly:

"Why didn't you bring your wife with you, Carroll?"

"Ecstasy! Don't!" he begged earnestly, kneeling before her.

Then she was fighting down an almost overpowering desire to stroke his hair, to caress and to fondle him. Now that she saw him the agony of the past hours seemed like a nightmare that had passed.

"You must listen to me," he went on passionately. "I am a blackguard, I admit I lied about my marriage. But do you know why I did? Do you?"

Madge forced herself to glance away from him. She must not look in those compelling eyes, or she would weaken—fling herself in his arms, forgive him utterly and absorb him in her love.

"I lied to you, beloved, only because of my love for you, which is stronger than myself. To gain you—I would have gone through hell! Honor! What did I care about honor if to sacrifice it meant to win you? Is it my fault that your beauty made me love you madly, insanely, with my heart and my soul and my body? Didn't you tell me the night that I met you—the night my heart fell—at your little feet—that you would have nothing to do with a married man?"

"Why—y—yes," she admitted, and a wave of tenderness swept over her as she heard the pleading tensity of his voice.

He went on triumphantly: "What was I to do? Walk away from you—give up my chance for happiness because you would have scorned me for being unhappily, miserably married? I should say not! In your eyes I saw paradise, and won't any man fight and lie and betray and cheat to escape from hell into heaven? I will—and I'm not ashamed. I'd do it all again tomorrow—because I worship you, because I love you."

Inexperienced little Madge! How could she know that even a false emotion can eloquently plead a cause? How could she know that what Carroll called love could be described by a less pleasant term? "Because you love me," she whispered. "Oh, Carroll! I want so much to believe you."

"It's true!" he went on with an increasing tenderness that caressed her throbbing heart. "My wife means nothing to me and I mean nothing to her. Instead of being unhappy, darling, you should be joyous, because today, after she found you in the studio, I succeeded in buying her off at last. For money she'll give me my divorce, and now it's only a question of raising the money, while before she had refused altogether. Agnes never meant to me as much as your little finger. I married her when young and very foolish and she left me five years ago. I would have told you all this the first night I met you if you hadn't said that you would have nothing to do with a married man. One lie led to another. I had to invent some story to gain time to make Agnes see reason, and allow my divorce—so I invented the rich old aunt. Now, will you please realize that it was only my love for you that made me lie?" Madge hesitated. She longed to forgive him—indeed had done so, but the feminine in her warned her to admit it reluctantly. Besides, even though she could not explain things the night she had met him because of her remark about the sanctity of marriage, that was no reason why later, during those tender moments in the studio, he could not have told her everything. But how she loved him! Impulsively she gave him her hands and said:

"I understand, Carroll—a little—but you should have trusted me!"

"Ecstasy," he cried. "How did I dare risk it?" Then he would have taken her in her arms, but she repulsed him gently and said:

"No, Carroll! Not yet. I am not sure of myself, and you must give me time." Then she told him of her determination to go to her father in Connecticut, where she would have leisure to think and make plans for the future.

"Ecstacy, I forgot to tell you!" he cried boyishly. "The new plane was delivered this morning. Go and change, and I'll fly you to your father—you little self-willed ice maiden!"

But three mornings later Madge arrived back in New York by train. She had been unable to really aid her father. His money worries had depressed her, and it had been difficult to be secretive with him upon the subject nearest her heart. And how could she have told him about Carroll, Madge argued, considering that he was not free to marry her?

But, above all else, had Madge been able to analyze her own feelings clearly, she would have known that it was nothing but stark, human jealousy that had caused her to take the early morning train back to New York—and to Carroll.

Had he sought feminine solace from his loneliness? What a fool she had been to leave him!

At last she reached the studio, and her heart was pounding. Hardy opened the door. "Good morning, miss," he greeted her. "Mr. Dudley is out, but I expect him back soon. Will you go into the studio, miss? There is a gentleman there, a Mr. Stewart, who is also waiting to see Mr. Dudley."

Madge was disappointed. She had so hoped Carroll would be there to greet her.

Slowly she entered the big room. A well-set-up middle-aged man was standing near the north windows, admiring a picture.

He turned as Madge entered.

"How do you do? he said pleasantly. "I am waiting for Carroll—Stewart is my name."

Madge murmured a polite reply, and then moved toward the canvas Stewart had been examining.

"Why, by Jove!" he drawled. "Why my dear young lady, I was just raving to myself over that exquisite thing of Carroll's! Having over his work and, if you will forgive me, even more over the beauty of his model! I would have given anything to meet you! I have never seen such perfection of—well, of everything!"

Madge stood aghast. This stranger had looked upon that intimate canvas! What would Carroll say! It was unpardonably careless of Carroll to leave that picture exposed. She felt ashamed to face the man—wanted to run away and hide.

Her confusion was so obvious that Stewart, wishing to put her at her ease, chattered on clumsily!

"Dear child, don't be shy. Why should you be bashful of such beauty? By Jove! You should be proud of it! You would have been if you could have heard a studio full of Carroll's friends only last night just raving! Carroll threw a party and not one of the people to whom he showed that painting did anything but gaze with wonder at it! I assure you—"

A studio full of Carroll's friends! Why then—Carroll was without one vestige of decency! He had broken his vow to the girl he swore he loved. He was utterly despicable, and as realizaton of this was borne in upon Madge, all sense of outraged modesty left her, giving place to blood-red rage.

To be continued Tomorrow.

MINOR LEAGUES OPEN CONFAB TODAY

SPORT COMMENT by JAMES J. LONG

Baseball Takes Stage.
Pitt's Floor Outlook.
Boxing Slump Ended.
Major Reserve Lists.
Foes of Turf Active.
Richest Horse Race.

NEW DRAFT RULES ARE PRESENTED.

WITH practically every official and league president in attendance, from Commissioner Kenesaw M. Landis down to the head of the smallest loop in the organized game, baseball comes back for an off-season turn on the sport stage today in Toronto, Ont.

Though the event is supposed to be merely of a minor league nature, the occasion being the yearly meeting of the National Association, which embraces 24 circuits, it is of general interest because of the possibility of developments affecting the diamond sport as a whole.

Kenesaw M. Landis.

THE most important item in this connection is the action to be taken on the latest proposal to revise the present draft rules. This is an old story to baseball followers. The movement to restore the draft in its old form has been revived annually for the last eight years, but each time, after lots of talk, it has led to nothing. The majors and the majority of the smaller minors have been unable to induce the three Class AA girdles to consent to a return to the old order of things.

Whether they will be any more successful on this occasion than in the past remains to be seen. The International League on Monday voted to oppose any changes, the American Association did not publicly commit itself at its meeting yesterday, and the Pacific Coast League, the third member of the "double A" group, has announced no definite decision. However, in spite of past failures, major league men and the delegates from the majority of the smaller minor organizations are prepared to make a more determined fight than ever before for the restoration of the draft in its old form, and are hopeful of obtaining at least a broadening of the present modified or restricted regulations.

"Drafting prices—From Class AA, $7,500; from Class A, $5,500; from Class B, $3,500; from Class C, $2,000, and from Class D, $1,500.

"One man only shall be selected from each Class AA and Class A club. The drafting from Classes B, C, D to be unrestricted.

"Drafting of umpires to be governed by prices ranging from $750 from Class C and D leagues to $2,000 for Class AA. The drafting season to begin on the first day of the world series and continue for five days.

"No other player shall be subject to draft until he has had experience during four seasons or parts thereof with a Class AA club; three seasons or parts thereof with a Class A club and two seasons or parts thereof with a Class D club.

"The number of optional agreements shall be limited to 12 players by each major league club, not more than four of whom in 1929, three in 1930, two in 1931 and thereafter, shall be players who have not had service or been under contract with a National Association Club."

Dr. H. C. Carlson.

DR. H. CLIFFORD CARLSON, Pitt's dashing basketball coach, who'd much rather depend on a bit of brain than a lot of brawn, has his Golden Panthers all but ready for what he hopes will be another season without a defeat. His team will be the first of the local college varsities to swing into action, traveling westward next week for a series of four games with Mid-Western opponents. Dr. Carlson is a firm believer in the power of mind over matter. He has come out already with the prediction that the Panthers are going through another season unbeaten. Last year, Pitt took 21 opponents in a row, no mean feat, and a lot less when you consider that Michigan, Iowa, Northwestern, Chicago, Army, Notre Dame and Penn State were among the teams to fall.

COACH CARLSON has his boys thinking they are going to win, and they couple hard work and ability with the unswerving determination to win. There you have a combination hard to beat. Besides, the genial doctor has Charley Hyatt, the ace of the '27 five; Capt. Wunderlich and Paul Zehfuss around whom to build his team.

Both Reed and Wrobleski were lost by graduation, but Baker, Jacobs, Arturo, Cohen and Miller, from last season's freshman team, are fighting for the positions left vacant. Charley Arthurs, of McKeesport, from the 1926-27 freshman squad, who was out of school last season, and Les Cohen, a letter man of last season, are also in the competition for the open jobs, so that there is no doubt the posts will be filled satisfactorily.

THOUGH fewer boxing shows are being held in Pittsburgh this season than usual, leaving McKeesport to furnish the major portion of the activities in the district, the fight game appears to be booming elsewhere. Boxing men who were bewailing the slump into which the sport appeared to have fallen are now predicting a banner season in view of the manner in which recent shows "packed them in."

Three cards in as many American cities last Friday night drew more than 52,000 fans and total receipts approximating $150,000. The Braddock-Griffiths bout in New York attracted 18,503 customers and the receipts were $57,245; Miller and McLarnin in Detroit drew an attendance of 15,000 and receipts of $55,000, and Maloney and Risko in Boston brought out 19,000 enthusiasts with receipts amounting to $37,388. And in Paris on the same night, the Pladner-Schwartz contest was witnessed by more than 20,000, the largest crowd that ever saw a ring fight in France.

Connie Mack.

RESERVATION lists of major league baseball clubs show that the Philadelphia Americans have the smallest number of players, Connie Mack having only 31 athletes on his roster following the removal of Tris Speaker, Ty Cobb and Joe Bush from the roll. Chicago, Cleveland, New York and Washington in the American League and Boston in the National are the only clubs reserving the limit of 40 pastimers. The Cardinals, who own half a dozen farms in the minors, have 33 men reserved, the Cubs and Phillies 34, the Pirates, Dodgers Red Sox and Browns 37, the Tigers 38, and the Giants and Reds 39. Pittsburgh's total of 37 players is made up of 14 pitchers five catchers, 10 infielders and eight outfielders.

MANY patrons of major league ball games have come to consider it almost their lawful privilege to retain possession of baseballs batted into the stands or bleachers. Clubs that attempted to stop the practice have been severely criticized, and officers or club employers who endeavored to recover the pellets have come in for a vigorous razzing.

The club owners have just found by a summing-up for the 1928 season that the continuance of the practice each year is costing them a pretty penny. A record was kept of balls batted among the spectators or over major league fences during the season, and it is figured that the pellets lost in that manner set the 16 clubs back about $30,000, meaning the loss of more than 15,000 baseballs.

SINCE the recent meetings at the Pimlico and Bowie tracks it has been persistently rumored that horse racing interests in Maryland

HIB MILKS TO GO TO WING

By CARL W. SHATTO.

EITHER Herb Drury or Mickey MacKay will break into the Pirates' starting forward line when the Pittsburgh skaters mingle with the world champion New York Rangers at Duquesne Garden tomorrow night. In discussing possible Pirate lineup changes today, Manager Odie Cleghorn said that Hib Milks would be moved from center to left wing, his original position, and that either MacKay or Drury would be called into the starting line to fill the gap at center. Such a shift would crowd Harold Cotton from the starting line.

Cleghorn tried both combinations in practice yesterday, and will put the trios to another test late today. The Pirate pilot said that he would not make a definite decision until tomorrow.

CLEGHORN UNDECIDED

Manager Cleghorn is convinced that the Darragh-Milks-MacKay combination would be ideal and one of the most powerful in the circuit, but he hesitates to remove MacKay from the spare line. Mickey, flanked by Tex White and Drury, made the Bucs' reserve line a real threat.

Odie realizes that a MacKay, Cotton and White combination would form a spare line of power and that a Drury, Milks and Darragh trio would be one of fair balance. It is probable, therefore, that Drury will get the center job in the starting line.

MacKay is almost fully recovered from an injury which he sustained at Boston last week. Bert McCaffery, kept out of the starting lineup by injuries on Saturday, has recovered and again will pair with Holway at defense.

Although the Rangers are world champions they are not regarded as better than an even bet to win here tomorrow night. The New Yorkers have lost three straight games since Ching Johnson suffered a fractured leg at Montreal Saturday. Taffy Abel, the Rangers' other regular defender, also is out with injuries, and as a result their defense, once the strongest in the loop, now is little better than the weakest.

But regardless of how the Ranger defense shapes up, the Pirates will not find them "easy." The Cook brothers and Boucher make up one of the best front lines ever assembled, and there is certain to be plenty of action.

KNUTE HANSEN KNOCKED OUT

CLEVELAND, Dec. 5—Chalk up another sensational upset of the flatic dope, Knute Hansen, the Melancholy Dane of the heavyweights, who has been highly touted as the likely successor of Gene Tunney to the championship, is the latest victim. He was knocked out in the eighth round of a scheduled 10-round bout with K. O. Christner, of Akron, a second-rater with a punch, here last night.

It was Hansen's first fight under the management of Billy Gibson, former manager of Tunney. Christner stormed out of his corner with gloves flying in the first round and forced Hansen on the defensive at the start. He kept up the barrage and Hansen gradually weakened. By the sixth round he was reeling under the slaughter. A right swing to the chin, followed by body punishment and then a right uppercut to the jaw in the eighth round, finished the mess.

The bout was the main event of a Christmas fund benefit card and was witnessed by 15,000 fans.

BOSTON BEATS RANGERS

NEW YORK, Dec. 5—(AP.)—The cripples of two teams played a large part in the latest alterations in the National Hockey League standing. The Toronto Maple Leafs played a game last night without their regular center, but with their defense working in top form and beat out Les Canadiens by a 3-to-1 score to advance from a tie for second place in the International group to the lead. The New York Rangers, with Myles Lane and Leo Bourgault, the only undamaged back line players, were unable to hold off the Boston Bruins, who pulled out a 5-to-0 victory from a dull game.

Lenglen in U. S., Traveling West Incognito

OMAHA, Dec. 5.—(AP.)—Suzanne Lenglen, French tennis star, is en route to California on the Union Pacific Overland Limited. She started from Chicago Monday night with her mother and Thaddeus Winter, her manager, who also is reported to be her fiance.

The party had tickets for Truckee, Cal. It was said they were going to a winter resort nearby.

They were traveling under the name of "Walker" and instructed railroad employes not to disturb them.

REIGH COUNT FACES TEST IN ENGLAND

By HARRY KECK, Sports Editor.

AMERICA'S champion thoroughbred, Reigh Count, is on the high seas on the greatest racing argosy of modern times. He is headed for old Newmarket, in England, to compete in the Ascot Gold Cup race in June, seeking to establish world supremacy.

The Ascot Gold Cup is not much of a race—a mere canter of two and one-half miles, mostly uphill. Some idea of what this means may be gained from the fact that the Kentucky Derby, the American classic, which the Count won this year, is an event of only a mile and a quarter, or half the distance of the Ascot.

If Reigh Count wins this feature he will be immediately retired to the stud by his owners, Mr. and Mrs. John D. Hertz, of Chicago. If he fails he will be entered in some other British events to give him a chance for a comeback.

FACES TOUGH GOING

All will not be beer and skittles for Reigh Count over on the wrong side of the Atlantic. It is tough going for a thoroughbred on the courses of a land with which it is not familiar, as has been demonstrated a number of times in the cases of other great runners.

For instance, recall the failure of the great Papyrus, the English Derby winner, to win when he was brought over here from England by Barney Irish for the international match race against Zev, the Kentucky Derby winner, in 1923.

Earl Sande was up on Zev and Steve Donoghue, then Europe's premier jockey, had the leg up on Papyrus. The pair met for a purse of more than $80,000 at Belmont Park. The distance was only a mile and a half and the horses met at even weights of 126 pounds. Rain rendered the track muddy. Zev was off in front and galloped home to an easy victory, with Papyrus laboring heavily in the soggy underfooting. It was no contest.

RECALLING EPINARD

The following year, Epinard, the French star, owned by Pierre Wertheimer, was brought over for a series of international specials and fared even worse than Papyrus, failing to finish better than second in each of three starts. In the first, at Belmont Park, Wise Counsellor led Epinard home at six furlongs.

MAJORS SET TO TRADE

TORONTO, Ont., Dec. 5.—(AP.)—Arrival of the last of the minor league stalwarts yesterday made the National Association of Professional Baseball Leagues' annual convention official, and now there is nothing to prevent President M. H. Sexton from calling the body to order this afternoon.

With the rush of minor league delegates came a number of observers from major league clubs, including Col. Jacob Ruppert, Secretary E. G. Barrow and Manager Miller Huggins of the World Champion New York Yankees; William F. Baker, president of the Phillies, and his manager, Burt Shotten, and President Clark Griffith and Manager Walter Johnson of the Washington Senators.

Manager John J. McGraw, of the New York Giants, and Manager Stanley Harris, of the Detroit Tigers were expected today.

TALK OF TRADES

The eve of the convention found much talk of trades between baseball clubs, but no deals completed. Manager Jack Hendricks, of the Cincinnati Reds, was in a receptive mood and it was understood he would talk business in a possible trade involving a pitcher or first baseman. Billy Evans, business manager of the Cleveland Indians, had at least one pitcher in his pocket and was willing to trade for an infielder.

The name on the uniforms to be worn by First Baseman Dale Alexander and Pitcher John Prudhomme, of the Toronto Maple Leafs, probably will be decided today. Detroit has first call on these players and President Frank J. Navin and Manager Stanley Harris may close the transaction on their arrival. If they do not decide to take the players, the Yankees can find a place for them.

Bert Niehoff, who has been succeeded as manager of the Atlanta club of the Southern Association by Wilbur Good, late of the Macon club of the South Atlantic Association, placed himself on the market and was at once linked by gossip with the Louisville club of the American Association, where Bill Meyer's resignation left a managerial post open. Both Niehoff and William (Cap) Neal, vice president of the Colonels, denied negotiations had been opened.

A. A. MEETS

Cap Neal explained he was a scout for the Phillies when Bert was the Philadelphia second baseman, so naturally when he met him they had much to talk over. The hotel rumors filled the post of manager of the St. Paul club of the American Association the same way, but President Bob Connery had no announcement to make. Marty Berghammer, who managed Tulsa in the Western League last season, was being mentioned for the Saints.

The American Association was the only league to hold a meeting yesterday. It was called for the purpose of considering the 1929 schedule. This question was postponed a day while a committee was appointed to confer with other class "AA" clubs on matters in which the American Association, Pacific Coast and International have common interests. The committee was composed of Henry J. Killilea, Milwaukee; George K. Belden, Minneapolis, and George E. Muehlebach, Kansas City.

President Thomas J. Hickey announced the signing of Umpires Snyder from the I. I. I. League and Johnston from the Western League for service in the American Association.

DECISIONS MADE

The national board of arbitration cleaned up a number of claims made by baseball players against clubs.

Ira W. Robie, a University of California player, won an $1,500 contest against the Seattle club, this sum representing salary for a season in which the collegian did not play a game for the Indians. Robie was given a Seattle contract for a year in November, 1923. The club changed hands in December and Robie was not retained. The board held that the player's contract was ironclad and he will collect his full season's salary from the Pacific Coast club.

Among claims disallowed were: Bernie Neis against Seattle, Homer Ezell against Minneapolis, F. A. Griffin against San Antonio, L. A. Benson against Houston, Walter Rehg against Columbus, (American Association); P. D. McPhail against Columbus, (Southeastern).

A deal involving two International League clubs sent Catcher Lena Styles, former member of the Athletics' catching staff, from Toronto to Reading.

GRID CAPTAINS ANNOUNCED

NEW YORK, Dec. 5.—With the football season about concluded, colleges are selecting their gridiron leaders for the 1929 season. Following are some of the choices announced by colleges in various sections of the country: Ellsworth Armstrong, Dartmouth; Willis Glassgow, Iowa; John Sloan, University of Virginia; John Parks, Wisconsin, and Edward Melanson, Villanova.

SCRIBES AT SMOKER

Havey Boyle, Harry Keck and Jess Carver, of The Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph staff, were among the guests at a smoker of Sigma Delta Chi, the international professional journalistic fraternity, in the Pitt Phi Delta Theta fraternity house last night. CUDDY DE MARCO IS BEATEN

CHICAGO, Dec. 5.—(AP.)—Billy Light, St. Paul welterweight, scored a technical knockout over Johnny Roberts, Huntington, W. Va., in the ninth round of their scheduled 10-round bout last night.

The fight was a one-sided affair, Light winning every round. In the fourth round the St. Paul battler dropped Roberts for a count of nine with a right cross to the jaw and in the ninth sent a hard blow to the stomach that floored him again for a count of nine. Roberts got up but was out on his feet and the referee stopped the bout. Light weighed 146 pounds and Roberts 148 pounds.

Dick Hoppe, Los Angeles 138-pounder, won the decision over Cuddy Demarco, Pittsburgh, in a 10-round bout.

Roger O'Brien, of Chicago, made his welterweight debut by being knocked out in the first round by Mexican Joe Rivera. The bout was scheduled for six rounds.

HUSKER ALUMNI NOT SATISFIED WITH BEARG

By JESS CARVER.

ERNIE BEARG has decided that the football coaching job at Nebraska is not the job for him, and has informed the athletic council at Lincoln he will not be a candidate for the post another year.

It isn't often that a coach decides to step out after he has enjoyed a winning season. Bearg piloted his Huskers to the Missouri Valley Conference championship, and lost only one game all fall. The Aggies beat him 18-3, and Pitt traveled out to the wilds of the Midwest and battled the Huskers to a scoreless deadlock.

The Nebraska season apparently was a successful one, but when you probe deeper you will discover that there was much more that might have been accomplished. Bearg had the greatest array of material from which to build a team in the middle west. He had speed, power and weight. If he'd had a smart team, he might have gone through undefeated.

Nebraska ran into trouble in all three of its games against eastern opponents. The giant Husker eleven was only able to beat Syracuse, 7 to 6. Then Pitt, outweighed and out-reserved, came out and upset all the dope by holding the Crimson machine 0-0, outplaying the Huskers all the way and presenting so staunch a defense that Howell and his mates were unable to get a single first down.

The following week, Nebraska journeyed Atlantic-ward and was beaten by the Army, and returning home for the annual Thanksgiving Day encounter with the Kansas Aggies, Bo McMillin's team, secured a rather unsatisfactory and certainly unimpressive 8-0 victory.

I was in the Cornhusker hotel at Lincoln the night after the Pitt-Nebraska game and met and talked with several Husker alumni. They were all very much dissatisfied with the game their eleven had played that day. Most of the blame was directed at Bearg.

Both Syracuse and Pitt presented teams that were smarter than the Huskers. The Nebraska folk didn't like that at all, and were unable to understand how little teams like Washington and Jefferson and Lafayette and the Panthers were beaten almost as they pleased with the giant boys. For that reason it will not cause any great surprise to see another coach get Bearg's place. Wilce of Ohio State has been prominently mentioned for the job, but should stepping out of the back door at O. S. U. will crook Wilce before stepping back into the frying pan at Lincoln. They like winners out there, too.

In connection with Nebraska and the coaching situation there, I asked Charley Bowser, assistant football mentor at Pitt, how he'd like to coach the Huskers.

"Fine," Charley said, "but I'd probably fire half the ball club before the season was over. These temperamental babies don't get far with me, and I like 'em with a few brains. I guess the coach there has to beat sense into those fellows."

Nebraska certainly would not go wrong in securing Charley, though it would behoove Pitt to run around after "Mowser" with a bag of gold if he even hinted at leaving. He is a very valuable aid to Coach Sutherland, and Jack will be the first one to tell you so.

The return of the college basketball bird recalls to memories a wager this correspondent won from the well-known Mike (South Side) Gallagher. At the Pitt-Notre Dame game out in the stadium pavilion last winter, Mike gave me a big-hearted bet that Notre Dame would win. The score at the time was 19-0 in favor of the Irish.

My chapeau right now is in terrible shape. It's stood the rain and snow and mud of a complete football season; two parties with Joe Dascher and Bob Waddell at Albany; a riot in Chicago with Don Saunders and Jimmy Hagan, and another in Omaha with Nick Bella. If Mike wishes to give the present season a real send off—an order on most any hat shop will be fine.

The size is seven and one-quarter.

RING TOURNEY UNDER WAY TONIGHT

The Greater Pittsburgh amateur boxing championships will get under way in the McKeesport arena this evening with almost 50 contestants vying for honors. It is hoped to get all of the preliminaries out of the way tonight and thus leave tomorrow the final evening, clear for the semi-final's and finals.

Joe Loder, the South Hills welterweight is now training under the coaching of Jack Harris and is returning to his former boxing style. He is matched with Joe Carilli, of Erie, at New Castle next Monday night.

George Peck of the North Side, stablemate of Ireland meets Young Gaudio, of Sharon, in a return bout in the semi-finals to be held in McFeeley-Murray Athletic bout, at Johnstown next Monday night.

Music, singing and other entertainment will be on the program besides boxing at the monthly social affair of Pittsburgh Typographical Union No. 7, to be held in the Elks Temple, Seventh street and Duquesne way, next Thursday evening. A lengthy program has been arranged by the committee in charge.

Jack Sharkey, Boston heavyweight, returns to action after a long layoff due to an injured knee, against Arthur DeKuh in the Boston arena next Monday night.

Roster has a fine card scheduled for Friday night. Dave Shade meets Eddie Flynn in the main bout, Johnny Jacobs clashes with Bruce Flowers, the latter's Jack Britton match, Frankie Elliott, who boasts victories over A. Mitchell and Harry Brooks, and Tony Mandell, have been signed for a ten-round affair. All are Pittsburghers.

Al Ivy Sable, the lightweight who hails from Lawrenceville, is ready to turn professional. He will box under his real name, Sabol George Kurth, manager of Johnny Vivio, will handle his affairs.

Johnny Urban, local heavyweight, will sail tomorrow with Pauline Uzcudun and Jack Renault for Panama, en route to Colombia. Must be going to be some big fistic doings down that way.

Dominick Proto and Johnny Vieto will box the main bout at East Liverpool, O., next Monday night.

DONATES SWIM TROPHY

Fort Eckles, superintendent of Homestead schools, has donated a trophy for the girls' 360-yard relay championship to be held in the Library Club pool next Friday night. The trophy must be won three times.

17 RACE HORSES DIE IN FIRE

COLLINSVILLE, Ill., Dec. 5.—(AP.)—Seventeen race horses, including Irish Pal, the popular favorite at the Fairmount Jockey Club during 1927 and a scratched entry in last May's Kentucky Derby, were killed early today when fire destroyed Fairview Park, one of the 18 tracks on the circuit. The loss was estimated at $65,000.

The cause of the blaze, which started in the south end of the 250-foot structure, was not determined. Griffith Watkins, of Alton, Ill., who owned Irish Pal and five other horses in the stable, and Anthony Foley, St. Louis county gambling house operator who owned nine of the racers, estimated their loss at $3,000 each. Charles Anderson, of St. Louis valued his horse Golden Sonder at $2,500 and the building was valued at $10,000.

Charles Barth, a watchman, related that he observed flames bursting from the side of the building. He called to another watchman and they aroused seven stablemen who were sleeping in the barn. They ran to safety, failing in their efforts to save some of the horses.

Foley's loss also included Talequa, the star of his stables, which won its last race at Churchill Downs, Louisville, Ky., last Saturday. Irish Pal, a three-year-old colt, was brought to Fairmount in the season of 1927, by H. Riley, and was a consistent winner, running undefeated in five races, and finishing the season with a smashing victory. The horse was sold to C. E. Durnell for $15,000 and raced with fair success on Chicago tracks.

Other horses lost in the fire were: Coal Black, a two-year-old, valued at $8,500; Picadilly, owned by Foley; Jyes, Promptness, Violet Betty, Donna Light, and Adventuress, all horses with fair track records.

Cards Send Blades, Outfielder, to Rochester

ST. LOUIS, Dec. 5.—(AP.)—Ray Blades, outfielder with the St. Louis Cardinals since 1923, will go to the Rochester International League team as part payment for Charley Gelbert, shortstop, Sam Breadon, Cardinal president, announced yesterday. The farm of the local club will also get a pitcher and unnamed amount of cash which Breadon says runs into "big money."

W. P. I. A. L. GRID VERDICT NEAR

The Class A football championship of the W. P. I. A. L., now in dispute between New Castle and Beaver Falls, will be awarded definitely Saturday following a meeting of the decisions committee of the league at Fifth Avenue High School. This body will go into the details of the Ostrosky case, with New Castle officials confident that they will be able to prove that Ostrosky is under the 21-year age limit and therefore eligible for competition. In the event that he is found to be o. k., the 40-0 victory of Phil Bridenbaugh's eleven over Beaver Falls, which is being held up at present, will be restored to New Castle and the championship awarded to the Lawrence County school.

Beaver Falls protested Ostrosky's eligibility following its defeat at the hands of New Castle and the Castle victory was temporarily set aside.

In the event that Ostrosky is found to be over 21 years of age and therefore ineligible, the championship will be awarded Tarentum High School, as the Allegheny Valley school has a higher point rating than any other school in the league aside from New Castle.

The regular meeting of the W. P. I. A. L. will be held following the session of the decisions committee Saturday.

MELHORN COPS HAWAIIAN OPEN

HONOLULU, T. H., Dec. 5.—(AP.)—Will Bill Melhorn of New York City, won the first annual Hawaiian open golf championship and the $5,000 purse yesterday from Fred Morrison of Alhambra, Cal., in their playoff match. The score for the 18-holes was Melhorn 73; Morrison, 75.

The pair were tied at the end of the 72-hole tournament Sunday with low cards of 291 each.

SANDLOT GRID SEASON ON LAST LEG

By TOM BIRKS.

THIS week probably will see the playing of the final independent football games. The controversy between McChesneytown and West View is far from being settled, and there are still many people who will bet that the teams will yet come together.

Manager Kennedy has promised the fans around Latrobe to give them a game Saturday at the High School Field in Latrobe, but as yet has not announced who will provide the opposition for the Big Red machine.

Never in the history of independent football has there been such a controversy as to the playing of the final game such as that between McChesneytown and West View has occasioned. And it is a sure bet that if the clubs ever do come together, all existing attendance records for local games will be broken.

Aside from the fact that quite a few are doing their best to belittle the record of McChesneytown fans in this district, and all the other districts want to see them in action. And when the teams do meet both will naturally want to play with an eligibility list.

This business of an eligibility list has caused much interesting data during the last two weeks. At one game a well-known player who is now out of the game, making his stand clear for the benefit of the fans around, said: "List's mean nothing. Anybody can play in independent football, and any guy who gives his word is crazy." Well, that is how they played football when the speaker was in his prime, and that is why the game never got any place.

At East Pittsburgh last Sunday, it was alleged the home team could not use its reserves because of a gentlemen's agreement, and that word is quite foreign to many people.

It is evident the story that West View has quit is all wet, for rumors are around that it has called practice for Friday evening. If Manager Muzzio had decided to quit, he would hardly call practice sessions, unless there is a chance of getting a spring league together.

There is also much talk of Oakmont and Verona staging their final get-together Sunday at Oakmont.

WILKINSBURG FETED

The Wilkinsburg High School held a banquet at the Penn-Lincoln Hotel last night in honor of its football team, which was attended by about 80 guests including Elmer Carroll, coach formerly of W. & J. The Wilkinsburg team enjoyed a successful season, winning 10 out of 11 games.

CHARLEROI GRID TEAM FETED

CHARLEROI, Pa., Dec. 5.—The crack Charleroi High school football team and the clever boys band of the school were given their annual banquet and entertainment last night by the Kiwanis and Rotary clubs at the Elks club.

Charleroi gridders enjoyed another fine season on the gridiron, they winning most of their games, no opponent being able to get better than a tie with Coach Stephen Stepanian's hustling crew. Stepanian is the same athlete who starred in athletics for Grove City College, being one of the best basketball players in the Pittsburgh district when he attended the Mercer county institution.

Dr. W. Botkin, president of the Kiwanis Club, was the toastmaster of the festive event. W. J. Coursin, secretary of the Kiwanis Club, was in charge of the affair. The invocation was given by the Rev. William M. Long.

The Charleroi squad received a pretty loving cup as a token of the esteem in which the club is held by the Kiwanians and Rotarians. The cup was received by Capt. James Bucus.

Among those making addresses were Prof. Thomas L. Pollock, who also is president of the Rotary Club; Coach Stepanian and Charles J. Isaly, of the sports department of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

Y. M. H. A. TO MEET MELLON IN HOME INAUGURAL

By JULIUS LEVIN.

FOLLOWERS of the Young Men's Hebrew Association basketball team will get their first glimpse of this season's powerful floor machine next Saturday night, when the Bellefielders oppose the Mellon National team, champion of the Pittsburgh Bankers' League, in the Y. M. H. A. home opener.

The contest will mark the first appearance of Sammy Klateman and Harry Sapira, former Somerman guards, in the lineup of the Bellefielders, and these two stellar passers are expected to add considerable strength to the team.

BEST TEAM IN HISTORY

This year's Y. M. H. A. team is without the least doubt the smoothest-working quintet that ever represented that institution on the floor. Former members of the Doc Gordons and the Somermans have made the Bellefielders the most-feared quintet in local amateur circles.

There is only one weak spot in the lineup, the varsity quintet lacking a first-class center. There are several promising pivot stars out for this position and this vacancy may be filled to the satisfaction of all concerned before the season reaches the half-way point. The Bellefielders are well fortified with material for the remaining positions on the team.

Although the Y. M. H. A. defeated Heinz House in the opening game of the Institutional League by a fairly large margin, the strength of the team cannot be judged by the result of this contest. Heinz House is woefully weak on the court this winter, most of the positions being held down by youngsters lacking experience. The winners, however, showed enough class to stamp them as a real contender for the league championship.

Next Saturday night's game brings the Bellefielders against a team that has held the Bankers' League title since the loop organization several years ago. Mellon includes in its lineup some of the best independent and amateur stars in this district and it is certain to present a strong front against the home passers. Keen interest has been shown in the home opener and preparations have been made to handle a large crowd.

FIGHT FOR LEAD

Tonight first place in the Greater Pittsburgh Institutional League will be at stake when the Y. M. H. A. meets Coach Williams' East Liberty Y. M. C. A. five on the latter's floor. The Y. M. H. A. and East Liberty teams each scored victories in their opening league battles and the winner tonight will take sole possession of first place.

The Y. M. H. A. Reserves, under the coaching of S. J. Baer, assistant athletic director, will meet Trinity Cathedral in the preliminary game.

Members of the Pittsburgh and Ohio Valley League will hold their final meeting before the opening of the season tonight in room 216, Fulton Building. Forfeits will be posted and important matters pertaining to the league will be discussed tonight and it is imperative that the Greenfield Club of McKees Rocks, Morry Five of Braddock, Broadway Club, Immaculate Heart, McKeesport Alumni, Felders of Jeannette, Mangans and the M. J. Conleys have representatives at the conference.

John H. Irwin and his Carnegie Tech varsity squad enjoyed a spirited workout with the Y. M. H. A. passers Monday night.

The Rankin Eagles want games with teams in the 15-17-year-old class. Call Brandywine 3230 and ask for Jimmy.

KOPPERS FIRM IN FURTHER EXPANSION

By GEORGE H. SNYDER.

FURTHER expansion of the Koppers Company into public utility fields has been made known through the offering of $20,000,000 of six per cent cumulative preferred stock of the Koppers Gas & Coke Company by a syndicate of investment bankers headed by the Union Trust Company of Pittsburgh.

The Koppers Gas & Coke Company is a subsidiary of the Koppers Company, which was formed in January, 1927, to acquire the parent organization's holdings of stocks in utility companies. In addition to acting as a holding company it also operates by-product coke plants valued at $28,316,203 after depreciation.

The Koppers Company has so successfully developed the by-product coke plant to be operated in conjunction with steel mills that the saturation point in this type of installation is not far away. The experience the management has had in the building of gas plants for public utilities has indicated that the actual operation and ownership of such plants offers the most attractive field for future activities.

THE Koppers Gas & Coke Company owns the Seaboard By-Product Coke Company, the Minnesota By-Product Coke Company and the Connecticut Coke Company.

Experience has shown that the distribution of gas to consumers and the coking of coal with the sale of the by-products are undertakings requiring entirely different experience. For this reason the output of gas of these organizations is sold to public utility organizations.

On completion of the present financing half interests in the Montreal Coke & Manufacturing Company and in the Hamilton Coke & Iron Company will be acquired. The latter organization operates both a coke plant and a blast furnace, selling its gas to the Columbia Gas & Electris Company and its iron to the American Rolling Mill Company, which owns the other half interest.

AN exceptionally large share of the Koppers Gas & Coke Company's assets consist of investments in allied companies of $15,571,510 and in other companies of $32,095,956. The largest holdings are in collateral trust bonds secured by common and preferred stocks of the American Light & Traction Company. Holdings of the common stock of the United Light & Power Company are also large.

Net earnings for the last four years have averaged $4,687,859, or more than 2.91 times the dividend requirements on the new issue of preferred stock. In 1927 net earnings were $5,361,318 or 4.46 times the requirements.

THESE earnings did not include non-recurring profits from the sale of various holdings amounting to $4,621,123 in 1927. In the first nine months of this year these special profits amounted to $6,627,937. The regular earnings for this year are estimated at $3,750,000, in spite of the loss in revenue from the sale of properties and the fact that earnings from new properties will not accrue until 1929.

The recent acquisitions under normal conditions will provide earnings of $1,250,000 a year.

The company has a funded debt of $31,124,000. Its total assets on September 30, after giving effect to the new financing, were $101,830,348.

THE merger of two local cleaning and dyeing establishments was announced today with the offering of 25,000 shares of a total of 50,000 shares of the capital stock of Crandall-McKenzie & Henderson, Inc., by K. W. Todd & Co., and Moore, Leonard & Lynch.

The Crandall-McKenzie Co. and L. Henderson & Sons Co., the two merged organizations, both have enviable reputations and have grown to be large establishments from small beginnings. The new stock will be placed on a $2 annual dividend basis.

Recent earnings have been well in excess of this rate. In 1927 combined earnings were $146,217 or $2.93 a share. Earnings this year are at the rate of $3.47 a share.

When to Increase Salaries; Having to Ask More Is Bad.

By B. C. FORBES

WHEN is the best time to advance salaries?

This question is timely.

A GOOD many employers in the old days rarely granted an advance until a request for it became insistent. Others looked over their payroll once a year and made such increases as they felt could not be safely withheld.

In brief, the too-common custom was to hold employes down to the lowest possible wage level.

IN progressive organizations better systems now prevail. Enlightened executives have given a great deal of thought to this whole problem. They are anxious to do the right thing, the right thing for employes and the right thing for their concern.

The methods differ in different establishments.

IN many companies and firms the general rule still is to raise salaries once a year, except, of course, when promotions have been made. Salary committees have been instituted in a number of places. All questions concerning pay are handled by these committees. Such an arrangement frees the chief executive from having to devote any considerable time to this rather complicated and sometimes bothersome matter.

AMONG large organizations and institutions there has been an earnest effort to standardize salaries, especially among the rank and file employes. Thus each position carries with it a specified salary. In some instances, the holder of such a position is paid a certain amount during the first six months or the first year and then raised to the maximum for that particular job. Higher pay thus can be won only by earning promotion to more responsible work.

LENGTH of service creates another problem for conscientious employers who want to reward loyalty, but who are confronted with the difficulty of paying one person more than another for doing exactly the same work. The solution now being adopted oftener and oftener is to pay an annual bonus, either at Christmas or on the anniversary of the worker's entering the service, this bonus being fixed not so much for each year of service. One company, for example, gives to each employe of five years' service or more, $10 for each year. Thus an employe who has worked for six years gets $60, and one who has worked 15 years gets $150. This expresses appreciation of long service without upsetting standardized rates of pay.

I HAVE reached very definite conclusions on this whole subject of granting pay increases. I think it is an outrage that workers who are clearly earning and deserving more pay should be forced to ask for it. An honest employer would not think of withholding part of the rent due by him to the landlord or of not paying his bills in full. Why, then, does he consider himself entitled to withhold from an employe money which that employe has earned?

Salary increases should be voluntary.

NOT only so, but once a year is not, in my judgment, often enough for employers to go over the payroll for the purpose of making changes. Twelve months strikes an ambitious young man or woman as a long, long time. Twice a year certainly is not too often to readjust salary lists. Three times or four times a year is more equitable.

This does not mean, of course, that every salary should be raised every six months or oftener. But in an organization of any size it is—or should be—inevitable that at least a few employes have made progress meriting more generous compensation without having to wait six months.

THE attitude of workers towards their organizations is determined probably more largely by how they are treated in this matter of pay than by any other thing. It surely is not conducive to an enthusiastic spirit of loyalty to be compelled to ask for an increase in pay. Voluntary action, conscientiously followed, creates confidence and loyalty. By and by employes who are passed by period after period begin to ask themselves wherein they are falling short. They know that asking for more pay will not avail them anything.

THE best time to grant advances is when advances have been earned. I know one man who developed so rapidly that his salary was increased three times in nine months. I know a young man who was "raised" 14 times in four years. Incidentally, both of the concerns are going ahead rapidly—due probably in no small measure to the fact that their employes all are eager to do their best.

Employe loyalty is worth all it costs to earn.

STOCK MARKET PRICES MOVE ERRATICALLY

NEW YORK, Dec. 5.—(AP.)—Speculative uneasiness over the credit situation was reflected in the extremely erratic price movements in today's stock market. Although several specialties were whirled up in spectacular fashion to new high levels on gains of 5 to 15 points, the general list appeared to be under pressure during a greater part of the session, losses of 1 to 6 points being distributed over a broad list of issues.

Call money opened at 9 per cent, the highest renewal rate since November 12, 1920, and held steady at that rate. Increasing holiday demands for funds, coupled with the disinclination of Federal Reserve banks to extend their purchases of acceptances, lead to predictions of 15 per cent call money before the end of the year. Wall street also was impressed with Secretary Mellon's annual report to Congress in which he frankly stated that the federal reserve system has worked for tighter money to restrict speculative activity, but that this action was not effective with respect to securities speculation.

Another series of favorable dividend announcements, and the publication of the weekly "Iron Age" review stating that pig iron production last month was the highest since April, 1927, and the largest November output since 1918, helped to revive bullish enthusiasm and started a general recovery in prices in the early afternoon trading. Radio, which fell from 420 to 409, quickly rallied to 416½. Wright Aeronautical made up most of its 11-point drop and A. M. Byers converted an early loss of 6 points into a gain of 5¾ by touching a new high at 301.

In the midday selling movement, Curtiss, Montgomery Ward, National Bellas Hess, Canadian Pacific and International Harvester dropped 5 to 6 points and National Biscuit, General Motors, Warner Bros. Pictures, Liquid Carbonic, Consolidated Gas, International Nickel, Cerro De Pasco Copper, Greene Cananea Copper and American Sugar Refining sagged 3 to 4¾ points.

Packard Motors led the afternoon rally by soaring 9½ points to a new high record at 150, one block of 11,000 shares changing hands at that price. Foundation Company ran up 10 points to a new top at 57½. Western Union, Allis Chalmers, Federal Mining and Smelting, Motor Products, Keith-Albee preferred and Mohawk Carpet sold 5 to 8 points higher.

Welfare Fund's Success Is Testimonial to Zeal

With a goal of $965,679, the workers in behalf of the Welfare Fund exceeded the quota set by reaching a total of $970,627.17. This splendid record in behalf of the 25 philanthropic societies, whose budget for the entire year of 1929 is thus assured, is a solid testimonial to the generosity of the people and the zeal of the earnest and tireless workers who carried the campaign to successful completion.

The work of raising this fund was no small task. It required first the preparation of the public regarding the merit of such a change in financing welfare efforts. Then, the long period of working out the details of the drive, and, finally, the work of solicitation, which required a small army of women and men who gave their time unselfishly to the cause of humanity. The canvass required a little longer time than was originally allotted, but the solicitors were faithful in their labors and as a result Pittsburgh's first move toward establishing a Community Chest is a success.

The Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph congratulates all who were instrumental in bringing about this satisfactory termination of a wonderful work. It congratulates A. K. Oliver, chairman of the drive, and the public because it received the services of Mr. Oliver, a man whose experience in similar work previously gave the Welfare Fund a valuable director.

The initial appeal will prove to have been the most important because it was a new idea on which the public had to be "sold." That task successfully accomplished, future work of a similar nature should be much less difficult. It is expected that the success attending the Welfare Fund drive will influence other worthy organizations not now affiliated with the fund to become members, and thus secure at the next annual canvass a Community Chest, one of the planks in The Sun-Telegraph platform.

Flouting Civil Service Shameless Proceeding

Council likely will have to find a way to pay the salary of a man who replaced an inspector in the division of weights and measures. A. F. Nolan, "dismissed" inspector, it has been decided, was not dismissed. The Civil Service Commission made the decision after a hearing at which Murray G. Livingston, chief inspector, stated that Mayor Kline gave the order of dismissal, connecting it with Nolan's having failed in a political task assigned to him.

The Commission, of course, acted very properly in the matter, since political service has nothing to do with a city employe's ability as an inspector of weights and measures. Public censure likely will rest upon the Mayor in this matter for injecting the pettiest kind of politics into the public service, but Mayor Kline is not alone in the blame.

Livingston is said to have testified to the Civil Service Commission that the executive gave the order for the firing of Nolan—"and I always obey orders." That is hardly a claim of loyalty that can be defined as an asset making for municipal efficiency. Superiors should have the power of removing subordinates, it is true. The obstruction of such power inherent in civil service regime has long been regarded as its chief drawback, making for mediocrity instead of superiority, but in this case it appears that ability was not the question, while political expediency was.

Livingston said Nolan was efficient. Are there so many efficient men under him that he could not "go to the front" for a good man? Could he not have stood in defiance of a political order, especially when he knew the dismissal was not authorized under civil service operation?

Whole Public Is Asked To Frame Metro Charter

The Metropolitan Plan Commission is to carry on, it is announced. With success of the constitutional amendment providing for a charter consolidating the entire county of Allegheny into one Metropolitan city of separate civil units, the commission hereafter will devote itself to outlining a charter for the greater city, which charter must first pass the Legislature, then be approved by the voters at a special election.

The commission will continue to maintain headquarters in the old City Hall, Smithfield street, where it wishes to receive suggestions of citizens as to what they consider desirable for incorporation in the proposed charter. It invites visits of representatives of all municipalities and townships. It desires public aid, in short, in framing the instrument of government for the county to be submitted to the next session of the Legislature.

It is a good plan. Let the people say what they want. Then, when the commission has sifted the various suggestions, which, of course, must remain within the restrictions set by the amendment, and they fully protect the autonomy of cities, boroughs and townships, permit them to speak again. When all has been decided upon, let the public have its final say at a charter convention, attended by accredited representatives of the various civil divisions, meeting to approve the proposed charter as a whole.

State's Oldest School To Be Saved for Boys

When we first glimpsed a news story in the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph that some of our boys were interested in preserving an old schoolhouse we were a bit startled. Remembering youthful dreams of a schoolhouse afire, surrounded by an army of boys struggling to keep away an army of parents carrying buckets of water to check the flames, we experienced some slight amazement. The fact did not fit with the dream about the youthful army triumphant and dancing in joy around the ashes of the seat of learning.

Reading on, it was found that the school our boys were interested in was an old, old one—a log house, to be moved to Mt. Lebanon Park as a shelter house in a tract of two acres set aside for the use of Boy Scouts. So we grudgingly forgave the boys.

Seriously, it is a worthy sentiment that prompts the sponsors of this movement to keep intact the school, said to be almost 150 years old, and not in use for about 100 years. It is believed to be the oldest schoolhouse in Pennsylvania. In its original location it was a neglected run-down shack. In its new one it should be a symbol of our progress in education.

THE RIGHT OF WAY

MAKE way please, gentlemen, for the Christmas shoppers. There they go with their love and their money; here they come with their love and their bundles, beautiful with affection within, beautiful with wrappings outside. Santa Claus, amiable but efficient guardian of the traffic, warns aside those who would selfishly intrude. The lights are set for "Go!" and "Go!" it is until Christmas Eve. Don't sell Christmas short! Don't gamble; invest. And the best Christmas investment of all is in what is needed by those who need it.

Tales That Are Told

All He Wanted

AN OLD lady who was noted for her kindness and her generous subscriptions to charities, opened the back door to a tramp the other day. He asked for something to eat.

While he was putting away a healthy helping of bread and cheese in the kitchen, the good lady noticed how ragged he was, and her heart was moved.

"My poor fellow," she cried. "Can't I do some mending for you?"

The tramp stopped his munching, stood up, and, pulling a button out of his waistcoat pocket, said simply:

"Indeed you can, mum. I'd like you to sew a shirt on this 'ere button."

Badly Put

"MY DEAR Mrs. Maxton," cried the inclined-to-be stout lady, "fancy meeting you here! Tell me, how are things in your part of the world?"

"Oh, rather pleasant," returned the unexpected acquaintance. "But I must tell you, my dear, we've got a new doctor, instead of old Sawbones, as you used to call him."

"Fancy that now! Do tell me, my dear—is he a nice man?"

"Oh, yes, my dear, delightful," breathed her friend. "A charming man. He's always so cheerful, and he takes life so easily."—London Answers.

Worst Story I Have Heard Today

By WILL ROGERS

THERE was a guy that was in a railroad wreck where 10 cars had been piled up and burned and a lot of people killed.

This here fellow didn't sue for damages, but he was one of the witnesses that was called in somebody's suit. A lawyer was trying to get something out of him about the wreck.

"Tell the court just what happened to you and the people you were sitting with," says the lawyer.

"Why, I don't fairly remember just what happened. There was some confusion, but it didn't make any impression on my mind."

"Were you knocked unconscious?"

"Nope. I wasn't hurt much."

"Then you saw the whole thing, the burning of the cars and the people being rescued, and some of them burned alive and all?"

"Yeah, I saw it all, I guess."

"Well, tell us about it."

"I tell you I don't remember. I just don't recall any details. It's been three months ago, and I don't remember."

"Do you mean to say you get no permanent impression out of this catastrophe that drove 10 men mad, killed a hundred and made nervous wrecks out of 40 people?"

"Nope. I been married 40 years, no, and my wife has been fighting me all the time. She was fighting me that day of the wreck, and the wreck itself was just a minor incident. It didn't make no impression."

LISTEN, WORLD!

By Elsie Robinson

DO you think with your "insides"—

Or do you think with your brain?

Do you think as a brute?

Or do you think as a man?

Brutes think with their "insides"—their viscera.

Actually they do not think at all. They react to their own internal chemistry.

When a brute is frightened or angered or excited, certain things happen to the many glands of its body. Some glands stop functioning pro tem—other glands increase their action. The liver becomes livelier or duller. Certain secretions are thrown into the blood stream. The heart action is increased or diminished. And the brute acts in accordance with its own chemistry.

It acts as its kidneys, spleen, thyroid and adrenal glands and other "insides" tell it to act. It really doesn't think at all, any more than a jumping jack thinks when you pull the string. It is at the mercy of its insides.

Many animals who consider themselves human beings, also do their thinking with their insides.

People who are continually being swayed by fear, hate, suspicion, desire, greed, conceit—aren't functioning above their ears. Nine-tenths of their action is controlled in their own bellies.

Our world is filled with animals who walk on their hind legs and wear pants or petticoats, but whose thought processes are not a particle more civilized than a baboon's.

These people are responsible for the lynchings and whippings which disgrace our country—the bigotry and stupidity and graft which hamper our government. They are, in reality, greedy, cruel, cowardly, stupid brutes, at the mercy of their own insides.

Real intelligence doesn't allow itself to be controlled by "insides." It opposes human thought to brute chemistry.

The truly civilized man may feel anger or hysteria being poured into his blood stream by his adrenal glands, but he doesn't surrender to his blood stream. He loathes such surrender to the brute and he fights that anger or hysteria with reason, self-respect, caution, humor and all the other attributes of his intelligence.

Of course, none of us are completely masters of our insides, as yet. But we are learning the truth about those insides and we are realizing that, before we can honestly call ourselves men, we must master them.

COLD YEARS

By Garrett P. Serviss

PROF. W. J. HUMPHREYS, of the Weather Bureau, thinks that cold years are associated with preceding great volcanic outbursts, which fill the upper air with vast clouds of very fine volcanic dust, which, besides producing gorgeous sunset displays, arrests the heat radiation of the sun. This is no new hypothesis, but Prof. Humphreys has made a special study of the idea and brings forward much evidence in support of it.

He finds by comparing meteorological records with records of volcanic explosions during the past three centuries that each great eruption of that kind has been followed by "one or more cool, cloudy summers." As the effects are supposed to last so long, of course the intervening winters must also have abnormally low temperatures.

The "year without a summer" par excellence, which gave rise to that phrase, was 1816. This followed closely after tremendous explosion of the volcano Tomboro in the East Indies, which occurred the year before. At that time world-wide observations such as have been available in more recent times did not exist. But in 1883 happened the most stupendous volcanic explosion in all recorded history.

* * *

A volcano on the small island of Krakatao in the Strait of Sunda, between Java and Sumatra, blew up with such fierce and sudden energy that it practically destroyed the entire island with all its inhabitants, and sent out oceanic waves that were perceived thousands of miles away; but, more significantly, it filled the air with immense undulations which were traced by their effects on the barometer completely around the world.

The vast clouds of fine volcanic dust which it hurled into the upper atmosphere, also spread in the course of succeeding months all around the globe, and awoke wonder and admiration everywhere by the magnificent crimson sunsets and sunrises thus produced. Conspicuous halos were also produced around the sun and the moon. These effects continued visible, with decreasing intensity, for several years, and in the meanwhile other great volcanic outbursts occurred in Alaska and New Zealand. Prof. Humphreys says that "the low temperature period following this group" (of volcanic explosions) "was second only to that of 1816."

* * *

In fact, there seems to be a periodicity affecting such grouped explosions, and the attendant cold years, which is brought out in Prof. Humphreys' list.

It is regarded as not impossible that another cold, summerless year may be brought about by the group of volcanic eruptions which seem to be in operation at the present time, though it has not, up to date, produced an explosion comparable with those above mentioned.

Bible Passages

"Who Is a Rock?"

(II Samuel 22; 31-47.)

AS for God, his way is perfect: the word of the Lord is tried; he is a buckler to all them that trust in him.

For who is God, save the Lord? and who is a rock, save our God?

God is my strength and power: and he maketh my way perfect.

He maketh my feet like hinds' feet: and setteth me upon my high places.

He teacheth my hands to war; so that a bow of steel is broken by mine arms.

Thou hast also given me the shield of thy salvation: and thy gentleness hath made me great.

Thou hast enlarged my steps under me; so that my feet did not slip.

I have pursued mine enemies, and destroyed them; and turned not again until I had consumed them.

And I have consumed them, and wounded them, that they could not arise: yet, they are fallen under my feet.

For thou hast girded me with strength to battle: them that rose up against me hast thou subdued under me.

Thou hast also given me the necks of mine enemies, that I might destroy them that hate me.

They looked, but there was none to save; even unto the Lord, but he answered them not.

Then did I beat them as small as the dust of the earth, I did stamp them as the mire of the street, and did spread them abroad.

Thou also hast delivered me from the strivings of my people, thou hast kept me to be head of the heathen: a people which I knew not shall serve me.

Strangers shall submit themselves unto me: as soon as they hear, they shall be obedient unto me.

Strangers shall fade away, and they shall be afraid out of their close places.

The Lord liveth; and blessed be my rock: and exalted be the God of the rock of my salvation.

New York Day by Day

NEW YORK, Dec. 5.—It is at the midnight services in the Bowery missions that New York's human driftwood is snagged before regeneration or oblivion. Mostly they come for the dole of bread and hot coffee or a free flop, but they must listen to the services first.

And, strangely enough, at these meetings many hopeless and world-weary derelicts are salvaged out of the turbulent stream and given their first step in complete regeneration. Mission preachers are paragons of patience. They never lose hope, although most of the trail-hitters return to old ways.

The mission is to them a material instead of a spiritual haven. No other place of warmth and cheer in all the city is open to them. There is a merchant I happen to know quite well with a prosperous shop on Fifth avenue who was a dissolute down and outer and chronic trail hitter.

The nightly audience is composed mostly of listless men past middle age with rheumy and furtive eyes and the utterly resigned attitude of the defeated. Their expressions have the futility of those expecting nothing of life but another kick. There is, too, the thick odor of unwashed bodies.

Ferocious burnt-out hulks sit glowering and sneering, yet the mission folk say they are those more often touched by the spiritual appeal. It sometimes takes years. Nearly all of the mission preachers are those who have touched bottom. They understand.

At a meeting the other night nearly half the congregation snored through the service in untroubled oblivion. Others shifted and shuffled about in the manner of those who have long since lost the power of concentration. To the visitor, it seems a thankless and hopeless task.

During a kneeling prayer a stranger bleary with booze lurched in and hiccoughed a meaningless jumble. And nothing I ever saw was so pathetically touching as the miserable outcasts standing to sing, "Washed in the Blood of the Lamb" in quivering off-key voices.

A Broadway playwright this season won a pillar of puffery in the newspapers parading around cut rate ticket agencies carrying a banner that heralded the virtues of his attraction. Another innovation in ballyhooing was that of a village producer who sat selling tickets in his own box office clad in an undershirt. Over the ticket cage a sign read: "I lost my shirt producing this show."

Still another gesture for the Broadway peasantry was exploited over the counter of a soft drink stand, reading: "I have been a drunkard for ten years. This is my first effort to come back."

OH, THESE WOMEN

By Leola Allard

AN English girl swung a pin and then stuck it in a racing list, betting on the horse whose name the pin pierced. She won $3,000. Immediately she gave up her job as stenographer and bought a pair of twin silver foxes to make her look pretty.

Don't you like her better than the girl who asks her husband what he did with every penny of his lunch money, and tells him he could have bought a suit for less, and scolds because he didn't put his money in the bank instead of having a little fun?

Even the lowliest of animals have to have a little play now and then, and men are not the lowliest—not quite.

While having breakfast with his wife, a mere man answered the postman's ring, and was handed a certified copy of a divorce decree. The wife neglected to tell him she divorced him for cruelty and had told the court they were living apart.

The oversight is going to cost her the divorce and net her a considerable amount of trouble. You don't have to tell a husband everything, but a little hint on a thing like this, it develops, would be worth the trouble.

Dorothy Scarborough, professor of English literature at Columbia University, lives in an interesting old house 200 years old, out at Cornwall, Conn. She hasn't anything in it less than 100 years old. She is, of course, even more interesting than her home, no wonder, with her talents, and that setting in which to write, she can write a book like "Impatient Griselda."

These days women who are worth while, aren't hunting for new friendships among the best bridge players and the best hostesses, and the women who can attract the most men to their parties. They are inquiring as Frans Schubert did when asked to meet strangers: "What can they do? Are they producers? What do they produce?"

Life isn't so long that worth while people want to waste it on women who do well only one thing—make whoopee. If I don't misinterpret Mr. Winchell, whoopee is a diversion and not a life work.

There is very little that can be done for women who haunt fortune tellers. And what can be done to them, the seers do.

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

DO YOU complain that your wife is not enough of a "good fellow?"

You allude to the wives of other men who join with your crowd in excesses that are neither womanly nor beneficial to their health and standing.

Do you want your wife to be that sort of "good fellow?"

Perhaps she realizes that she might not be able to stop at the point the other stop if she allowed herself to take the same privileges that these women take.

You might be ashamed of her if she threw away the restraint she has exercised thus far.

Or, she may be the kind that cannot enjoy the "good fellow" good time.

Would you have her do things which she despises merely to be popular?

You want her to be popular in a certain set and you think that for the sake of associations that you want, she might unbend in that direction for you.

But she might go further if she did not hold herself in check—have you ever considered that feature of it?

It is a wise person who understands him or herself and knows when and how to put on the brakes.

It is easy to go too far and it is hard to get back when a slip is made.
